

Carter Launches Search For Veep Running Mate

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Jimmy Carter is working on what appears to be the last piece of business remaining before he launches a full fledged presidential campaign — selection of a running mate.

Carter was at home in Plains, Ga., today to confer with Sens. John Glenn, D-Ohio, and Walter Mondale, D-Minn. The meetings with the man who has virtually locked up the Democratic presidential nomination were to discuss the No. 2 slot on a Carter ticket.

Sen Edmund Muskie D-Maine, has already talked with Carter. The former Georgia governor has said he wants to meet with at least five persons before making up his mind on a running mate. Carter said he won't announce his choice before he gets the presidential nomination at the party's convention in New York City next week.

Carter's press secretary said Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.J., might also be contacted by the candidate to discuss the vice presidency.

In Sacramento, California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., the lone Democratic holdout against Carter, said he presumes he will let backers nominate him for president next week.

Brown, who said he realizes the depth of Carter's strength, told reporters, "I assume I'll run the process through to the end."

Carter himself has the delegates to win the nomination, and he told reporters Wednesday night that it's the general election he's concerned about now.

An aide to George C. Wallace, one of several Democrats who began the race for the party's nomination, said Wednesday the Alabama governor had been invited to address the national convention. Wallace was not on the initial convention schedule issued by party officials.

Meanwhile, Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., suggested that President Ford should call on John Connally, the former treasury secretary and governor of Texas, as the vice presidential candidate if Ford gets the nomination at the GOP convention next month.

The race for the Republican nomination between Ford and former California Gov. Ronald Reagan is now centering on delegate hunts in Colorado and North Dakota.

Reagan trails Ford by 32 delegates, and campaign sources say the challenger is looking for a split at the state party convention in North Dakota. The state's GOP chairman, Allan Young, who is regarded as a Ford backer, says he expects the President to win between 11 and 14 of the state's 18 delegates.

Colorado, which picks the remaining 25 members of its 31-member delegation this weekend, is considered Reagan territory.

An Associated Press delegate count shows Ford with 1,008 convention delegates, 976 for Reagan — with 1,130 needed for nomination.

Cadet Lashes Out At Code Violations

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A West Point cadet who says the U.S. Military Academy enforces its honor code inconsistently has alleged in federal court here that cadets sold stolen military equipment, cheated on exams and impersonated government officials.

Those cadets, he claims, were never punished for honor code violations — and therefore he shouldn't be either.

Candidates Differ Sharply On Energy Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Do you prefer controlled or uncontrolled oil prices and imports? Mandatory or voluntary energy-saving standards? Federal back-up or federal break-up of big energy companies?

Take your choice and look closely at this year's presidential candidates.

The energy policies of Democratic contender Jimmy Carter differ sharply from those of President Ford and his rival for the Republican nomination, Ronald Reagan.

For example, Carter favors oil price controls and import quotas, mandatory energy conservation standards and trimming the power of large energy companies.

Ford and Reagan favor an unregulated oil market, more voluntary energy conservation steps and federal support for energy companies.

Carter has more faith in solar energy, less in nuclear power, than Ford or Reagan.

All three favor removal of interstate natural gas price regulation, but Carter would make it temporary — a five-year test of the theory that it would bring forth new gas supplies as producers claim.

All three also favor greater reliance on coal, but Carter questions Ford's push to develop federal coal in the west as a move that might short-change the existing coal area of Appalachia.

After two years in the White House, Ford has spread his energy views all over the public record.

As former governors of Georgia and California, respectively, Carter and Reagan had neither Ford's federal resources nor his responsibility to develop national energy policies.

But Carter has developed a fairly comprehensive and specific set of energy policies, including an original proposal for a World Energy Conference to foster international cooperation in energy research, investment, data-gathering and conservation.

Radiation Hurting Girl?

WASHINGTON (AP) — A State Department medical specialist says a 3-year-old American girl removed from the U.S. Embassy in Moscow has been hospitalized in the United States for treatment of a "bizarre" blood disorder.

The girl was one of two children brought out two weeks ago at the direction of doctors investigating possible health effects of microwave radiation being beamed at the Embassy by the Soviets. The second child, also a 3-year-old, has since returned to the Soviet capital.

Dr. Herbert Pollack, a radiation medicine specialist, said Wednesday that doctors were trying to diagnose the cause of the blood disorder found in the hospitalized child.

"It's one of the most unusual, bizarre things I've seen in my 50 years of medicine," said Pollack, a professor emeritus of medicine at George Washington University.

He admitted that the cause of either blood problem had not yet been fully pinpointed, but he insisted that "neither situation was due to radiation — that is absolute, straightforward, above-board fact."

He refused to name either child or to detail the symptoms of their illnesses.

Meanwhile, a State Department spokesman said that although the strength of the Soviet microwaves aimed at the Embassy has been "greatly reduced," U.S. officials remain concerned that the Soviets have not completely stopped the radiation bombardment.

"Frankly, we regret that the Soviets have failed to turn off the trans missions completely, thereby, in our judgment, demonstrating a lack of concern for the living and working conditions of our people in Moscow," spokesman Robert Funseth told reporters Wednesday.

The purpose of the Soviet radiation remains unclear. Most speculation has focused on possible use of the microwave beams to foil U.S. electronic eavesdropping equipment mounted on the Embassy's roof.

Funseth also disclosed that the State Department's medical division has signed a contract with Johns Hopkins University "to provide us with a detailed evaluation and a broad biostatistical survey" of the medical histories of U.S. personnel assigned to Moscow.

This study, he said, would "test the provisional conclusion of the experts whom we have been in touch with that there is no correlation between the microwave radiation levels at our Embassy in Moscow and any health problems encountered by employees who have served there."

Queen Faces Busy Time In U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Britain's Queen Elizabeth II faced a hectic day that includes a variety of diplomatic duties, lunch at the Capitol and a reception and dinner at her country's Embassy.

The queen and Prince Philip were to spend most of the day meeting American dignitaries.

The royal couple was to dine with congressmen at a Capitol luncheon, to view the Magna Carta on loan from England at the Rotunda and to see British artworks on display in Washington.

In addition, the queen was scheduled to greet her Embassy personnel and to accept a key to the federal city.

It was the third day of a week-long visit in honor of the United States' 200th birthday and was to be highlighted by a major social event — a reception and dinner for President and Mrs. Ford at the British Embassy.

The Fords hosted a state banquet Wednesday night, the most glamorous and the largest they have given in the White House.

Mrs. Ford had said she wanted the party to be special because, among the world's queens, she considered Elizabeth to be "The Queen." The white-tie dinner under a white canopy in the White House rose garden was a major effort to impress the visiting monarch.

The 224 guests included some of the United States' wealthiest and most influential businessmen and the top officials of the government. Also in attendance were former First Lady Lady Bird Johnson, the 92-year-old Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, Reds Buy More Grain From U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sales of U.S. grain to the Soviet Union under a new long-term agreement to begin with deliveries this fall have crept to 2.8 million metric tons, nearly one-half of the minimum amount Russia is committed to buy each year.

The Agriculture Department said Wednesday that 300,000 tons of corn and 300,000 tons of wheat have been sold to Russia under terms of the agreement. Earlier this year the Soviets bought 2.2 million tons of the two grains.

As specified in the agreement, the Soviets are supposed to buy at least six million tons of wheat and corn annually, beginning with deliveries this Oct. 1. They can have up to eight million tons a year without further discussions, but if more is wanted the pact calls for consultation with U.S. government officials.

The department said the new sales involved about $45 million worth of wheat and $36 million of corn at current market prices. The export firm was not identified.

The Soviet Union in the past week also has bought about 1.5 million tons of U.S. soybeans worth at least $375 million for delivery in the 1976-77 season. Soybeans are not included in the five year grain agreement.

daughter of President Theodore Roosevelt, and entertainment and sports personalities.

After dining on Maine lobster and saddle of veal, the President and the queen exchanged toasts and clinked champagne glasses.

"In our third century, I know the United Kingdom will be on our side and the United States will be on your side," Ford told the queen. He said the continuing relationship between the two countries was "a reassuring symbol of our determination to continue the defense of freedom."

The queen wore a diamond tiara, necklace, earrings and bracelet with the blue sash of the British Order of the Garter on her striking yellow dress.

In her return toast, she noted that the times are uncertain. But, she said, "one thing is certain and that is the strength and permanence of Anglo-American friendship. May it long continue to flourish for the sake of both our countries and for the greater good of mankind."

The royal couple stayed at the party until 12:40 a.m., leaving after entertainment that included comedian Bob Hope and dancing in the state dining room. The Fords remained another hour.

Kelley Says Indian Area Dangerous

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa (AP) — FBI Director Clarence Kelley has defended the policies of federal authorities toward American Indians at Pine Ridge, S.D., a year ago by saying that reservation is "more dangerous perhaps to FBI agents" than other parts of the country.

Kelley, under a threat of contempt charges, testified Wednesday at the murder trial of two American Indian Movement members.

Defense attorney William Kunstler tried to show that an atmosphere of violence prevailed at the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation. He said that should be the trial's basic issue.

Kunstler heads a seven-member team defending two Oregon men, Robert Robideau and Darelle Butler. They are charged with murder in the shooting deaths of FBI agents Jack Coler and Ronald Williams, both of the Los Angeles area, on June 24, 1975.

Kelley testified that about 150 FBI agents, backed by helicopters and armed with battlefield equipment, arrived at the reservation shortly after the shootings.

The deaths of the agents, Kunstler said, was a "tragic confrontation, not murder."

"Is life on the reservation more dangerous than in other parts of the country?" Kunstler asked Kelley.

"More dangerous perhaps to FBI agents," Kelley replied. "There have been two agents slain there."

Markets

NEW YORK (AP) — Talk of a possible loosening of Federal Reserve credit policy inspired a broad advance in stock market prices today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks climbed nearly 3 points in the early going, and gainers took a 2-1 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Trading was brisk. Analysts cautioned that there wasn't enough evidence to draw any firm conclusion about the Fed's intentions.

But they said moves by the central bank on Wednesday had prompted speculation that it might be trying to encourage at least a slight decline in short term interest rates.

Today's early prices included LTV, up 1/4 at 15 1/2; General Motors, ahead 1/4 at 67, and General Electric, 1/4 higher at 57 1/4.

In Wednesday's mixed market the Dow Jones industrial average lost .65 to 991.16.

Expansion Sought In Israeli Debate

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — American and other Western diplomats are going to try to expand the Security Council debate on Israel's rescue raid in Uganda into a broad condemnation of terrorism and hijacking.

The debate had been scheduled to begin today, but it was postponed until Friday afternoon to await the arrival of Uganda's Foreign Minister Juan Oris.

U.S. Ambassador William W. Scranton, back at his post after a goodwill tour of Africa said the U.S. government feels strongly that the council's agenda should have wide scope.

African delegates who asked the Security Council to take up the Israeli rescue of more than 100 hijack hostages from Uganda have said they want to limit the debate to a condemnation of what they call Israel's "blatant aggression" against Uganda.

But some African diplomats indicated they were not opposed to broadening the debate into a forum on terrorism. From the outset, the Africans have made clear they called for the council meeting more out of bloc solidarity than out of sympathy for Ugandan President Idi Amin, an unpopular figure.

The United States and other Western countries have tried for years to get the United Nations to issue a strong condemnation of political terrorism and aerial hijacking. But resolutions of condemnation have always been blocked by Arab and Communist delegates who argued that Palestinian terrorism against Israel was a justifiable tactic in a struggle for national rights.

The Israelis are going to counter-attack with the charge that Amin acted in complicity with the Palestinian and German terrorists who hijacked the Air France jetliner and demanded the release of 53 prisoners, 40 of them held in Israel.

"We believe the Ugandan government was part and parcel of this operation," Israel's ambassador to the United Nations, Chaim Herzog, said on the NBC Today show.

"It is quite clear they were accomplices," said Herzog. "...We have a right and duty by international law to protect our citizens...as long as we do not overstay our welcome" or use excessive force, Herzog said.

American officials said the United States would veto any resolution condemning Israel.

The American Jewish Congress accused U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim of a "shocking partisan act" in terminating the Israeli raid a "serious violation" of Uganda's national sovereignty. The congress

EMT Lists Activities

The Circleville Emergency Medical Team made 85 emergency runs during June. Of the total, 67 were within the corporation limits of the city, four were to Circleville Twp. four to Jackson Twp. four to Washington Twp. four to Wayne Twp. and two to Pickaway Twp.

Thirteen were for automobile accidents, 22 for other accidents, 31 were for illnesses and 13 were for persons suffering from heart attacks. In addition the squad made three runs with the fire department.

The Circleville Police Department dispatched the squad on 27 calls and the Pickaway County Sheriff's department 30. The squad drove a total of 458 miles, an average of 5.4 miles per run.

Volunteer hours worked by team members totaled 1,097. Fifty-one volunteers worked during the month an average of 21.5 hours per volunteer.

Push Mine Inspections

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Mining Enforcement and Safety Administration (MESA) says it has "blitzed" some 160 coal mines with intensive inspections this year.

Jack Crawford, assistant administrator for coal mine health and safety, said at least 55 of the mines were selected because they received frequent notices of violations.

Crawford said the "blitz" approach of sending in teams of inspectors to cover every working section of a mine is not new. But its use has been more than doubled this year, he said.

He said MESA was generally putting one inspector in every working area of a mine during these inspections.

"Right now, we're looking at five general areas of violations in planning impact inspections: ventilation, combustible materials and rock dusting, hoisting and man trips, fire protection and haulage," said Crawford.

"These include the areas where you may get involved in fires and explosions, and they are what can cause the greatest number of fatal and non-fatal accidents."

The agency said it is studying the results of its blitz inspections and will release its findings.

called on Waldheim to resign.

Waldheim made the comment in an interview with an Egyptian reporter in Cairo Monday. Later, a spokesman for the secretary-general said he was replying to a question about the legal aspect of the matter.

The Jewish congress said Waldheim's "rush to judgment in accusing Israel" and his "eagerness to appease the U.N. majority and abandon his proper role of neutrality and objectivity" disqualified him as secretary-general.

There was no comment from Waldheim.

Ohio Bell Rates Rise

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The cost of service provided by Ohio Bell Telephone Co. will rise following the Public Utility Commission of Ohio's approval today of a rate increase.

Ohio Bell was allowed to increase charges or make additional charges in order to bring in another $200 million.

Under the order, Ohio Bell will increase average monthly residential bills by $3, charge 20 cents an inquiry for directory assistance after three in one month, double to 20 cents the initial charge of a call from a public telephone, and more than double installation costs.

Ohio Bell has 4.7 million telephones in Ohio and provides service to three-quarters of the state.

The installation charge for residents would go up from $16 to $36.50 and for businesses $20 to $41.50.

Effective dates of the rate increases will vary since the company must refile its rate schedule in accordance with today's ruling and wait for final PUCO approval.

The commission also allowed Bell to institute a new service for residential customers. Under the plan a customer may buy 30 local calls a month for 50 cents less than he now pays for unlimited service. In Columbus, for example, the new service would cost $7.50 a month. Calls above the 30 limit would cost nine cents each, but the commission noted that approximately 68 calls could be made before the customer would pay more than he would for unlimited service under the new rates.

Long distance calls within Ohio will go up an average of 37 per cent. Out-of-state calls will not be affected by today's ruling.

In allowing the telephone company to begin charging for directory assistance calls above the three-a-month limit, the commission made the order on an interim basis. The definition of interim is unclear, but presumably the commission will review that section of its order sometime in the future.

Bell's business customers now must pay according to volume use. All businesses will pay a flat rate for 80 calls a month and nine cents for each additional call.

The ruling basically allowed Ohio Bell's increase request as filed, but did deny three minor requests.

Disallowed were the company's request to pass on to its customers its costs for lobbying; for its costs of commissions paid to hotels and motels; and for its cost for free services traditionally provided management personnel.

In commenting on the ruling, the commission said it had made the ruling "as tight as we could possibly make it taking into consideration recent Ohio Supreme Court decisions."

The court has ruled the PUCO no longer can reduce a utility's rate of return to counterbalance what it feels is an inflated base rate determined by growing building and equipment costs.

Rushmore, and Wind Cave National Park in South Dakota; Devil's Tower National Monument, the Big Horn Mountains, Cody's Buffalo Bill Museum, Yellowstone National Park, and the Grand Tetons in Wyoming; Rocky Mountain National Park in Colorado; and Gateway Arch in St. Louis.

For their one unit of credit, which has been granted by the Logan Elm Board of Education, students will be required to keep a notebook including such things as a cross-country profile, answers to questions on areas to be visited, and a log of each day's experiences. Included in the many education experiences will be tours, movies, and slides at visitor centers, ranger-conducted campfire programs, driving tours, an underground cave tour, a guided white-water raft trip down the Snake River, a visit to a national fish hatchery, a viewing of traditional Indian dances, visits to ghost towns, and many hikes, including an all-day hike up Flattop Mountain in Rocky Mountain National Park with an accompanying slide down Andrews Glacier.

Students will also be required to fulfill some duties of the camp and will be working in one of four groups, the tent crew, the van cleanup crew, the cooking crew, or the dish-washing crew. Groups will be rotated every five days so that all students will have worked as a part of all four crews during the duration of the trip.

Among the recreational activities will be fishing, swimming, including a dip in a natural hot springs pool, and attending the finals of the "granddaddy" of the American rodeos, Frontier Days in Cheyenne, Wyoming. Horseback riding and a ski lift ride will also be available as options to those who want them.

When church services are not available in national park campgrounds, the group will have student-led devotions.

The group will be traveling in three vans supplied by International Field Studies at Capital University in Columbus. Each van will be pulling a covered trailer for tents, sleeping bags, duffelbags, food, and other gear.

The teachers and chaperones leading the trip are Logan Elm assistant principal Paul Brown and his wife Helen, physical education-health teacher Stan Wilamowski and his wife Sharon, and biology teacher and trip coordinator Vic Pontius and his wife Sharon.

After their return, students, their parents, and friends will be invited to the school for a get-together, at which pictures, slides, and experiences from the trip will be shared.

The first orientation session for students is Wednesday, July 14 from 10 a.m.-noon in the high school.

A Page Of Opinion

It Figures

Guess which American city has its financial affairs in such disarray that even its public accountant can't make head nor tail of the records and doesn't know if the city is operating in the red or the black? The nation's capital Washington D.C. is the culprit.

A nine-volume audit by the accounting firm is filled with such entries as "many inaccurate numbers" and "major omissions of financial data." Among the major discrepancies found were: Two out of three payments made to public assistance recipients were in error, unfunded liabilities in the pension program totaled $1.7 billion, and more than $100 million in delinquent accounts were found in the city's hospital billing system.

In addition, records on 120,000 water and sewer customers were so inadequate it was found impossible to determine whether these customers were properly billed or even which bills had been collected.

Blame for the mess has been assessed against district officials, Congress and the executive branch. But it is the nation's taxpayers who will be asked to help bail out the capital, beginning with a $20 million appropriation request just to put the books in order so auditors can find a place to begin.

Big Fat Facts

EDITOR'S NOTE: Phyllis Battelle is on vacation. Today's guest is Lois Lindauer, international director of the Diet Workshop, who founded her business on a personal loss — one third of the weight she had carried throughout her adult life.

By LOIS LINDAUER

If I had one word of information to give to a novice dieter, it would be "jettison the junk intelligence you have plucked from family, friends, and media before you start to diet."

Myth information on diets and dieting abounds, updated frequently to suit the times and fads of the moment, but the bulk of it goes on forever. Here are some timely statements:

FALLACY: The birth control pill must shoulder the blame for obesity in many cases.

FACT: Walk down any street in a large metropolitan area and observe all those bright, young women bouncing to work. The majority sport trim, taut figures; and the majority are undoubtedly on THE PILL. If you start on the pill while you are in the middle of a diet, there may be some initial gain as your body seeks an equilibrium from this sudden onslaught of hormones. Eventually, you stabilize and you lose weight. Many thousands of women, just the Pill age, have successfully reduced at The Diet Workshop. It can be done.

FALLACY: If it isn't the birth control pill that makes you fat, it's tranquilizers.

FACT: Sounds a little familiar, doesn't it? There's nothing in a tranquilizer to raise your calorie levels. There is something that will lower your controls. The diet danger with tranquilizers is that they will do their job so well the dieter is tranquilized into an "oh-what-the-heck?" attitude about everything, including staying on the diet.

FALLACY: Glandular imbalance causes most obesity.

FACT: Which glands? No one ever specifies with that statement. The Diet Workshop Nutrition Consultant, Morton B. Glenn, M.D., says that fewer than 10 per cent of obesity cases are directly attributable to the glands, usually to an underactive thyroid. That leaves 90 per cent caused by something else.

FALLACY: Dieting is out of reach of the average pocketbook. In these days of inflated food prices, no one can afford the veal and special diet foods a weight loss program requires.

FACT: Look at the cost of sugar, butter and cream! Not to mention baked goods. You won't be buying them on a diet. You'll be eating lots of fruits and vegetables, always available at savings in season. Can't afford veal? Eat chicken and tuna fish! What you don't buy saves you money on a diet when you stop to figure it out.

FALLACY: The only way I can diet is to crash off the extra fat.

FACT: Crash diets are dangerous. First of all, that isn't all fat that crashes off. Many times fast weight loss brings about large amounts of protein loss (muscle and organ tissue) together with fat. And I just read an interesting article in the Journal of the American Medical Association that linked crash dieting to loss of hair. The hair crashed two to five months AFTER the diet. That's enough to give any crasher pause.

FALLACY: When weight is inherited, it is impossible to budge it by dieting.

FACT: No one knows for sure if family fat is inherited through the genes or through the family food pattern and eating habits. But there is a relationship between overweight parents and overweight children beyond the family tie. One fat parent and you have a 50 per cent chance of being a fat adult. Two fat parents, and you have an 80 per cent chance.

Whether it is inherited genes or inherited food and eating patterns, you CAN do something about it. My intuition is that fat parents most likely pass their fat along to the next

U.N. Debate Slated On Commando Raid

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — African and Arab delegates prepared with misgivings today for a Security Council debate on Israel's daring rescue of hijacked hostages from Uganda.

The Israelis relished the prospect and planned to accuse Ugandan President Idi Amin of complicity with the Palestinian and German hijackers. "It's a difficult situation for the Arabs and Africans," said an African diplomat after the Organization of African Unity asked the council to take up a charge that Israel had committed aggression against Uganda.

The Africans asked that the start of the debate be delayed until Thursday to give Ugandan Foreign Minister Juan Oris time to reach New York. "If there is a Security Council meeting, we will participate," said Israeli spokesman Tuvia Saar with evident satisfaction.

He disclosed that his government was preparing testimony from hostages and other sources to support the Israeli claim that Amin acted in complicity with the hijackers who seized an Air France jetliner between Tel Aviv and Paris and had it flown to Uganda.

Israel's U.N. mission also circulated a note that said the hijacking illustrated the terrorist aspect of the Palestine Liberation Organization, which has been gaining influence at the United Nations.

The note, titled "Again — the PLO shows its other face," ignored the PLO's condemnation of the hijacking and the hijackers' claim that they were from the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, an anti-PLO guerrilla organization.

The council debate will force generation through the dinner table, not the genetic table. During the last year at The Diet Workshop, we have been working with our dieters through Behavior Modification techniques.

Eating is a behavior; a learned response to a stimulus. You can unlearn an improper response (eating on cue to almost any situation) and learn a proper one. Combine this new eating behavior with a knowledge of proper nutrition, and you have diet success.

You see, there is only one sure way to lose weight. That is to eat fewer calories than you expend in the form of activity. For women, that is in the range of 1,200 calories per day in a well-balanced, nutritionally sound three-meals-per-day program. Weight goes slowly, safely, and surely. That holds whether you take the pill, tranquilizers, eat chicken instead of veal, or have fat parents.

BIG FAT FACT: If you want to lose weight, you can.

representatives of other African governments to defend Amin though many of them openly hold him in contempt.

"Many Africans privately hate Amin and have even wished him a speedy assassination," said an East European diplomat.

The debate will also put the spotlight on African disunity by opening the door to a confrontation between Uganda and neighboring Kenya. Amin charged in a message to the United Nations that the Kenyan government collaborated with the Israeli raiders before they landed in Uganda.

U.N. diplomats generally agree with Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim's assertion that the Israeli raid was "a serious violation of the sovereignty of a member state." But few of them appeared to doubt that Amin cooperated with the hijackers, and all voiced admiration for the skill and daring of the Israelis.

"I'm afraid that such an act should be condemned as a matter of principle," said the East European. "Personally, I consider the raid legally wrong but morally justifiable."

Reds Buy Soybeans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has bought another 700,000 metric tons of soybeans worth an estimated $175 million from this year's U.S. crop, the Agriculture Department says.

The sale was announced Tuesday, four days after a previous Russian purchase of 800,000 tons of soybeans for an estimated $200 million for delivery in 1976-77.

In a related development, the Agriculture Department said Tuesday the Soviet Union's grain prospects appear greatly improved over last year's drought-shriveled harvest of 139.9 million metric tons, the smallest in a decade.

Russia's grain harvest this year should be close to the 190 million metric tons that the USDA tentatively forecast June 22, a USDA official said.

A metric ton is 2,205 pounds. Three U.S. crop experts have just returned from an 18-day tour of seven Soviet grain-producing districts, and the USDA plans to issue a new analysis on Soviet grain Friday.

The Soviet grain crop planted last fall suffered major damage during the winter, but there are indications the surviving acreage has recovered well in some key areas. The balance of Soviet grain comes from crops planted in the spring.

Sheriff's Deputies believed a pickup truck stolen from Beckett Motor Sales, 122 E. Franklin St., was used by thieves to steal a 500-pound safe from a garage at Nelsonville. The truck was found abandoned on the Westfall Road and the safe, minus $432 in cash and checks, was found submerged in a foot of water in the old canal.

Circleville citizens were urged to cooperate in the planned three day rat-killing campaign. Poisoned bait was set to be distributed to alleys and around store basements in the city.

Butter was selling in Circleville stores at prices that ranged from 67 cents a pound to 81 cents a pound.

Circleville city council would not be able to replenish its treasury by charging rental for use of the municipal water system, according to a ruling by the state attorney general. The city was planning to take over the property from the Ohio Water Service Co.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

In an annual checkup, what tests do you consider essential? Do you think that some of the tests being done today are unnecessary?

Mr. J. S. E., Tex.

Dear Mr. E.:

The age group and the past history of illness have a great deal to do with the extent of the annual checkup. I believe that an adult in good health requires the following tests:

X-ray of the chest; electrocardiogram; complete blood study, including cholesterol, uric acid and enzymes; rectal examination; test for glaucoma; "Pap" smear test for women; mammography when any unusual findings are noted in a woman's breast; urine examination. The heart, the lungs, blood pressure and general vascular structure are part of the general examination.

In children, maintenance of normal immunization is probably the most important part of the regular examination.

There are many tests which can be performed if the physician finds any unusual evidence in the tests mentioned above. Normally, these are not routinely done unless a specific need is present.

Eye examinations and hearing studies are referred to specialists when there is any indication of impairment.

Liver scans, kidney studies and neurological examinations are not part of a routine workup.

The physician is trained to recognize the need for more sophisticated tests when there is confusing evidence during the routine examination.

I have been advised to have an operation for hydrocele. Will this affect my potency?

Mr. P. N., S.C.

Dear Mr. N.:

A hydrocele is a collection of fluid around the testicle. It occurs in both children and adults.

A simple operation relieves this problem. It in no way affects the function of the testicle. Potency is not impaired.

High Court Rejects Evidence Argument

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court says a prisoner who had a fair chance to prove in a state court that he was convicted on illegally seized evidence is not entitled to another chance in a federal court.

The 6 to 3 decision Tuesday was one of four in which the justices, winding up their 1975-76 term, rejected complaints that police had violated constitutional rights by seizing evidence illegally.

The major decision reinstated convictions of two men who said illegally obtained evidence was used to convict them of murder.

The men were Charles Powell, stopped in a Henderson, Nev., parking lot by a policeman who found he was carrying a pistol that turned out to have been used in a San Bernardino, Calif., slaying; and David Rice, in whose house police investigating the bomb-slaying of an Omaha, Neb., policeman found dynamite and other explosive equipment.

Federal judges overturned both men's convictions. Powell's conviction was reversed on grounds that he was frisked under an unconstitutional vagrancy ordinance and Rice's was overturned on grounds that the officers' search warrant was too vague.

In appealing the decisions, Nebraska and California officials said such rulings in recent years have hampered prosecutors and helped the guilty escape punishment.

Justice Lewis F. Powell, Jr., writing for the court, said defendants will still be able to seek exclusion of improperly seized evidence at their trials and, in their appeals to state appellate courts, but their ability to make such claims in federal courts, except by appealing to the Supreme Court, will be sharply curbed.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger said he favored abandoning the so-called exclusionary rule, which bars use of such evidence, or extending it only to "a small and limited category of cases."

Justices William J. Brennan Jr., and

Thurgood Marshall expressed apprehension that the decision would lead to curbs on the power of federal courts to hear prisoners' claims that they had been illegally trapped, put in double jeopardy or forced to incriminate themselves.

"This court is not free to curtail... constitutional guarantees, even to punish the most obviously guilty," they said.

Brennan and Marshall called the decision "the ninth this term marking the continued eviceration of Fourth Amendment protections."

Medicaid Program Extended

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Administrators of Ohio's financially troubled Medicaid program can relax for now, but they may face an even more critical problem next Nov. 15, state officials say.

The controlling board went along 7-0 Tuesday with a stop gap plan to pay back bills to health care providers and to carry the indigent health care program to Jan. 1. Then comes the hitch, Deputy Welfare Director Raymond McKenna told the board.

The board authorized the transfer of $47 million which was to have been used in the 1977 fiscal year started last Friday. It acted under provisions of a newly enacted supplemental appropriations bill signed by Gov. James A. Rhodes on June 28.

Ohio and many other states have been forced in recent months to come up with extra funds for indigent health care which has soared in cost beyond most predictions.

The cost in Ohio alone figures to be $497 million in the biennium started July 1, 1975.

McKenna said Tuesday's transfer means that the department can certify in August that state dollars will be available to secure federal matching funds for the fiscal quarter that begins Oct. 1.

By a Nov. 15 deadline, he said, unless the legislature makes new money available or cuts are made in other welfare programs, officials will not be able to certify that state dollars will be on hand for the three months starting Jan. 1.

The $47 million transfer of fiscal 1977 funds to pay 1976 bills—approved by the board without dissent—is part of a $128.5 million welfare department outlay the legislature intended would be spent in the 1977 fiscal year.

The remaining $81.5 million was appropriated for other welfare programs which include Aid to Dependent Children and general public assistance.

Many of those participating in both the Baked Goods Contest and the Home Arts and Crafts Contest picked up their entries early, on Monday, and therefore they did not receive their prize money from the chairmen.

For the baked goods items, if you received a first, second or third place ribbon you have a cash award to go along with the ribbon. These ribbons and prizes may be picked up at the home of Marilyn Sabine, 98 Powell St., Ashville.

Mrs. Roger Hedges reports that she has several articles that were on display and not picked up on Tuesday morning. She too has several cash awards that the contestants failed to be given if they picked up their articles on Monday evening. Again if your entry received a ribbon you have money awaiting you. The articles and money can be picked up at the home of Mrs. Hedges.

Flood Insurance Made Available

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Property owners in another three Ohio locales are eligible for federal flood insurance, making the program now available to 501 communities in the state.

Newly eligible areas include Addyston, near Cincinnati; Belmont County, across the Ohio River from Wheeling, W. Va.; and Orangeville, at the head of the Shenango River Lake on the Pennsylvania border.

But considering the state's Lake Erie coast and long Ohio River boundary, relatively few Ohioans have signed up for flood insurance, a National Flood Insurers Association spokesman says.

Private insurance companies will not insure homes or other structures against flood damage, so the federal government through the Department of Housing and Urban Development established the NFIA to provide subsidized coverage in flood-prone areas. Some 125 private insurance companies act as servicing agents for the federal program.

In the 501 Ohio areas qualifying for the program, 7,713 property owners have signed up—an average of 15 policies in each eligible area.

The NFIA spokesman said the relatively small percentage of insured property owners might be the result of their ignorance about the program or might be due to delays by the municipalities involved.

He says that once HUD identifies an area as flood prone and offers it a chance to participate in the program, the local government has one year to meet certain HUD requirements and ask to be included in the flood insurance program.

If that regulation seems to penalize the property owner for the negligence of government, it does, the program spokesman said. He said he thinks the program was conceived under the assumption that property owners would pressure their local governments into participating.

Beyond simply being unable to participate in the program if the municipality doesn't join in the federal insurance offer, property owners in the area become ineligible for any federal funds, such as emergency flood relief or the chance to sell the property to a buyer who has federal financing.

After HUD identifies a qualifying area there are two steps which follow for the locale. First comes an emergency program where homeowners may buy up to $35,000 coverage for the structure at 25 cents for each $100 of insurance. Contents may be insured up to $10,800 at a rate of 35 cents for each $100.

In the second stage, HUD sets a rate depending on the likelihood and extent of flood damage for different locations in the flood-prone area. Those rates for homeowners range from one cent to $50 for each $100 of coverage up to $70,000. The rate range is the same for contents coverage to maximum of $20,000.

The program also is available to owners of apartments and commercial buildings in affected areas.

Alternative Energy Sources Still In Future

By TERRY KIRKPATRICK
AP Business Writer

It is possible today to warm your home at night with heat from the sun, run your car on a fuel made from wheat or power your electric toothbrush with the wind. It's all possible, but unlikely to happen any time soon.

Since the oil embargo in late 1973, and the sudden jump in oil prices that followed, the dream of a cheap, clean and unlimited supply of energy has led a handful of people to build solar collectors on their roofs, install methane-burning engines in their cars or erect windmills in their backyards.

And millions of dollars have been poured into research and development of these alternative energy sources since American motorists first waited an hour in line to buy gasoline.

Such spending by government and industry jumped from $145.3 million in 1973 to $402.6 million in 1975, according to a survey prepared for the U.S. House Committee on Science and Technology. And the share of industry and government energy research money going to alternate sources has been growing — from roughly 9 per cent in 1973 to 16 per cent in 1975. The rest has gone to the more conventional energy sources.

Most research money supplied by industry goes to energy forms it currently produces and sells, petroleum being number one. More government money goes to nuclear research than anything else.

In fiscal 1976, for instance, the Energy Research and Development Administration spent almost half a billion on the breeder nuclear reactor — four times the amount allocated to any other single item.

So the more exotic energy alternatives account for only a fraction of the nation's total needs. Oil, natural gas and coal carry most of the load and will for some time to come.

Those who determine how research money will be spent foresee only a limited role for solar, geothermal and synthetic fuel energy in the next decade. One estimate, by the Federal Energy Administration, is that they will supply only about 1 per cent of the total energy demand in 1985.

For the most part, the technology needed to replace some of the limited oil with unlimited sun or wind is there. The holdup barring their widespread use is economic: although the world price of crude oil has quadrupled in the past three years, it is still cheaper than most of the alternatives, say government and energy industry experts.

And some industry projects to produce a synthetic gas from coal or wring oil from shale rock, which were begun in earnest shortly after the embargo, sit idle.

"We had perceived the inevitable transformation to the more abundant resources well before the embargo," said A. L. Shrier, who directs special energy projects for Exxon Corp., the nation's largest oil company.

"We have followed shale and tar sands for 20 years. We bought coal reserves. What came instead was greater reserves in the Middle East and North Africa, which kept prices down."

That alternate fuels have not yet become competitive with Mideast oil was noted in June by Nicholas Sarkis, director of the Arab Petroleum Research Center, when he predicted that the oil exporting countries will raise their prices again later this year.

There are other problems and a look at them shows why alternative energy sources haven't developed more quickly:

—Consumer markets for new products, such as solar collectors or windmills, are undeveloped.

"What are the barriers in the way of establishing large-scale solar use?" Joseph Lindmayer, president of Solarex Corp., a leader in the development of solar cells, asked at a recent energy conference.

"We generally tend to think that what we need is a great technological breakthrough that tomorrow suddenly reduces the cost. I have slowly come to the conclusion that basically that is just not the case."

"I think that the real barriers are market development, user education, availability of capital and manpower."

For markets to function, buyers need to be aware of what is available. John M. Teem, who recently resigned as the government's chief of solar, geothermal and advanced energy systems, says there should be a greater federal role in stimulating the use of solar heating and cooling and the dissemination of information.

"I fear that without this stimulation, the private sector will not achieve the early commercial market development of solar energy which is needed," he said.

With enough buyers to support mass production, prices could come down. Lindmayer said solar cells, used almost exclusively for space projects just two years ago, have dropped to one-tenth the price since then as they have been put to use on earth.

"These changes are actually so dramatic that most individuals and organizations have not yet fully recognized this new situation," he said.

—The capital costs of some new energy forms are tremendous. (Capital is the money required to build or buy permanent plants or equipment.)

Some homeowners, for instance, could reduce their monthly utility bills by installing a rooftop solar collector to provide hot water and room heat.

But estimates of the cost of such collectors range from $4,000 to $8,000. It would take 10 to 20 years to pay for them with savings in utility bills, depending on whether they replace expensive electrical heating or cheaper oil or gas.

"Anyone buying electricity today and paying more than four or five cents a kilowatt hour is better off on economic grounds with a solar collector," Shrier says. "The problem is it has a large up-front cost. If you've got the money, that's fine. Most consumers don't."

—Industry faces enormous capital costs if it pursues the production of synthetic fuels.

Several coal-to-gas projects are in the planning stages, but such plants could cost as much as $800 million. And the gas they would produce would cost $3 to $5 per thousand cubic feet, compared with the current regulated price of 52 cents per thousand cubic feet of new, interstate gas.

A low-quality gas, called town gas, is produced in other nations and was produced in this country before the advent of natural gas pipelines.

"We hear a great deal of talk about the need to develop new technology for coal conversion," R. R. Breckenfeld of Shell Oil Co. said. "The real problem is not the availability of technology, but that the technology that is available is too expensive."

"Coal gasification has been practiced commercially for 125 to 150 years. Nearly 50 commercial gasifiers are operating today. One can hardly say that the technology is not available."

Several ventures that sprang up after the embargo to top the tremendous reserves of shale oil beneath several Western states have also stalled under environmental and economic problems.

John McKinley, president of Texaco Inc., said recently that a plant to produce 100,000 barrels of oil a day from shale would cost between $1.5 billion and $2 billion and require the mining of 50 million tons of shale a year — five times the size of the largest coal mining operation in the country.

Its product would have to sell for $18 to $22 a barrel, compared with imported oil now costing $12 to $13 a barrel.

"It seems that as each year passes," McKinley said, "the possibility of oil shale making a real contribution moves two years forward."

Church School Set At CUMC

Vacation Church School at the Community United Methodist Church will be held next week, Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. until 11:30 a.m.

There will be classes for children ranging in age from three years old to the sixth grade. The theme for this year's program is "Happy The People." Those who have not yet registered may still do so.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Wants To Be Babied, But Needs Help

DEAR ABBY: I know you'll think I'm crazy, but here goes:

I am a 20-year-old college student who has a very strong desire to be babied.

It all started about six years ago when my older sister began telling me how I used to laugh and thrash happily around while my mother diapered me. Now I derive great pleasure out of just thinking of having a woman powder and diaper me. My desire to experience it again has become so strong that I have actually pinned a diaper on myself and wet myself!

I hope some day to marry a nice woman who will go along with this harmless little game of "playing baby," and agree to powder and diaper me.

I'm normal in every other way and have made the dean's list, so I'm not crazy. Is there anything wrong with wanting to be a baby again? Please advise me, Abby, and try not to laugh.

WANTS TO BE BABIED IN GA.

DEAR WANTS: I am not laughing. Your strong desire to regress to your baby days and have a woman focus her attention on your genital area could indicate a serious emotional problem requiring expert help—perhaps psychoanalyst.

You can search the world for a woman who will "baby" you and change your diapers, and if you find her, have her see a psychiatrist, too. A marriage of emotional children is a real bummer. Get help.

DEAR ABBY: My husband's parents were divorced after 30 years of a very bad marriage.

My father-in-law was in business for himself and had an affair with his secretary, who was about my age. After the divorce, my father-in-law married his young secretary.

How do we introduce his new wife? Since we're about the same age, I can't very well call her my "stepmother."

Also, what should my children call her? They now call her by her first name.

PANAMA CITY, FLA.

Hoosiers Want Bayh For Veep

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A majority of the 75 Indiana delegates to the Democratic National Convention want Jimmy Carter to pick Sen. Birch Bayh as his running mate.

They are, however, willing to let Carter select the nominee for vice president. An Associated Press poll shows 39 delegates listing Bayh as their top choice for vice president. Twenty-one listed no choice.

Bayh ranked fifth in a national delegate survey. That list included more than 60 persons.

DEAR PAN: I think you should introduce her as "my father-in-law's new wife." And your children should continue to call her by her first name.

DEAR ABBY: I have a great deal of respect for that man who sniffs his food before he eats it. (His lady friend found it a "disgusting" habit.)

I've never known a dog to trust his eyes when it comes to food. He trusts his nose, however, and he's absolutely right.

If human beings would take a good whiff of what they are about to eat, there would be a lot less food consumed and fewer bellyaches.

NOSY AT MEALTIME
DEAR NOSY: "Sniffing" food indicates that there are doubts about its edibility, which is no compliment to the host. So if sniffing is in order, it should be done subtly.

Firm Plans Appeal Of Shutdown Order

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Reserve Mining Co. says it will appeal an order setting a one-year deadline for an end to its taconite waste discharge into Lake Superior.

U.S. District Judge Edward J. Devitt ordered Reserve Wednesday to halt its lake discharge by midnight July 7, 1977. If the state and the mining firm cannot agree on an alternate dumping site by then, Reserve would have to close its Silver Bay taconite processing plant.

Although the order sets a firm deadline, it would be possible for Devitt to modify the order if there is agreement on a site in coming months.

Devitt made no mention of an extension in his written order or in comments from the bench, however, saying merely that his responsibility is to "signal the end of the dumping of taconite tailings in Lake Superior."

Devitt is the second federal judge to order the discharge stopped. U.S. District Judge Miles Lord ordered an immediate halt to the discharge on April 20, 1974. The plant was closed for less than two days before operations were resumed while the order was appealed.

Metzenbaum Sees Classic Campaign

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Democratic Senate candidate Howard Metzenbaum said here Wednesday the campaign between him and his opponent, Sen. Robert Taft Jr., should be a classic in that the two men differ so markedly on the issues.

Metzenbaum was in Columbus on the second day of a three-day campaign tour through the state. He spoke to reporters on the Statehouse lawn. He stressed what he called the philosophical differences between him and his Republican opponent.

"We are different. We are different in our point of view toward government and our attitude toward government's responsibility to solve the problems of this nation," the former senator said.

Listing those differences, Metzenbaum said Taft does not believe it is the federal government's duty to provide jobs. "I do," Metzenbaum said, promising, if elected, to vote for an override of President Ford's Monday veto of a jobs bill.

The candidate, who served in the Senate as an appointed replacement for Ambassador William B. Saxbe, also said he opposes deregulation of natural gas supplies while Taft supports that move.

On campaign finances, Metzenbaum said he will feel lucky to raise $2 for every $3 raised by his opponent. He set $800,000 as his goal in the November election campaign, a figure double what he raised before the June 8 primary.

The Cleveland millionaire reiterated his support for more federal help for senior citizens and a national health care system but did not offer the specifics of his program.

Marine Training Attacked

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although the Marine Corps trains only one-fourth as many recruits as the Army, the number of deaths among recruits during training in the two services is almost equal, a congressman says.

Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., said Tuesday that Marine Corps records show that 13 recruits have died from injuries or bodily failure during training since 1972.

During the same period, the Army recorded 14 recruit fatalities, said Aspin, who noted that the Army trains about 240,000 persons a year, compared with the Marines' 60,000 recruits.

The Marine deaths resulted from an accidental shooting on a rifle range, heart attacks and kidney failure, the premature explosion of a hand grenade, suffocation in a collapsed foxhole and, in the case of Pvt. Lynn McClure, from head injuries sustained during a pugil stick drill, Aspin said.

The Marine Corps confirmed that 13 recruits died, but a spokesman said only four deaths were directly related to training, while the other nine were "physiological deaths indirectly attributable to training by reason of the activity in which involved."

Two recruits died from kidney failures and seven from heart attacks, the corps spokesman said. The four directly related training deaths included the accidental shooting on a rifle range and the hand grenade explosion, he added.

School Lunch Standards Announced

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's Department of Education has announced new eligibility standards for free and reduced price meals at public schools, generally adjusting them to accommodate increased living costs.

Supt. of Public Instruction Martin W. Essex said Tuesday the standards were changed to comply with those handed down annually by the federal government. States must follow those standards to qualify for federal funds.

Under the new standards, a family of four, for example, with a combined income at or below $7,130 would qualify for free meals and milk. A family of the same size with income between $7,130 and $11,110 would be eligible for reduced price meals not to exceed 20 cents for lunch and 10 cents for breakfast.

During the last school year, the free meal program was limited in the same category to children from families with income of not more than $6,260. Reduced price meals for four-member families was contingent upon their income being between $6,260 and $9,770.

The new standards for free meal eligibility range from an income of $3,680 for a one-parent-one child family to $14,590 for a family of 12, including parents.

For the reduced price program, the range is from $5,730 for the one child-one parent family to $22,770 for the family of 12.

Youthful Criminals Given 2nd Chance

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — Youthful criminal offenders in this city can have a second chance, thanks to a special probationary program developed by the police department.

"Our plan is for the child who messed up once but wants a clean future," says Sgt. David Coger, who administers the program. "There often is a need for some kind of punishment that falls between a verbal reprimand and a trip to court."

The voluntary program essentially is a written contract between Coger, the parents and the juvenile stipulating what the youth can and cannot do during the 3-to 4-month probation.

Portions of the contract call for the juvenile to be home by 10 p.m., attend school, make constant checks with Coger and stay away from any businesses selling alcoholic beverages.

Coger keeps no record of who has been in the program or how many youths have participated.

"If a kid goes through the full period abiding the contract, there is no record," he says.

"When a youth has finished the period, he is completely clean. But if the contract is violated, he goes right to court."

Coger estimates he has success with 9 of 10 participations for the three-year program.

"I've had kids who've committed felonies in this program," Coger says. "After checking with school officials and court records, I'll decide if someone belongs in the plan."

"Then I offer the parents and offender the alternative of the program or a trip to court. Each case is different, so I treat each kid individually."

Coger initiated the program because of dissatisfaction with a straight probation plan.

"A conventional probation program is often too large and consistently not followed up due to manpower deficiencies," Coger says. "Some offenses also do not need to be taken to court marring a youth's record by a juvenile mistake.

"Maybe I have a captive audience," Coger says, "but I think that I make the kid stop and think. If that happens—and it often does—the self-satisfaction of this program is enormous."

Lima State Hospital May Close

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The state's mental health director will recommend to the governor that Lima State Hospital for the criminally insane be closed within three years.

Dr. Timothy B. Moritz, director of the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation, informed U.S. District Court in Toledo Wednesday that he will ask the legislature to replace the facility with three new forensic psychiatric hospitals.

There are 367 patients at the institution, a reduction from the 1,475 in 1960. The facility is a maximum security institution with its main buildings constructed in 1907 and the newest structure built in 1952.

The three new forensic psychiatric hospitals would be located in Cleveland, Columbus and southwest Ohio.

"For no more than the cost of renovation of the Lima facility, the new facilities can meet all of the relevant national standards with far superior therapeutic design and improved security systems," Moritz said.

The federal court was informed of Moritz's intention during a prehearing in a case stemming from a 1973 class action suit in which numerous inadequacies were discovered at the hospital. Improvements have been delayed with the court's knowledge, but another suit was filed to find the state in contempt of the court's order to upgrade the facility.

Moritz estimated it would cost $13.6 million to improve the facility to meet federal pollution control laws, minimum standards of the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals, and provide programs of adequate support of modern therapeutic programs.

In 1971, a special state grand jury indicted 28 hospital employees, who were subsequently fired, and three former employees with charges ranging from assault to torture, lewdness and sodomy. The charges came to light after newspaper stories on the institution.

Court Clerk Releases June Report

During the month of June, Circleville Municipal Court collected a total of $12,948.51 in fines, costs and bond forfeitures in its criminal division. This information along with the disbursements for the month's money was included on the report released today by Carolyn Royster, clerk of the city court.

Of that amount of money collected, the clerk disbursed $6,945.78 to the City of Circleville; $2,885.60 to the county; $2,614.95 to the state treasurer. Other disbursements, were of much smaller amounts and included miscellaneous costs.

Municipal Court Judge O. Charles Hosterman suspended fines and costs during the month of June totaling $391.35. The court filed 435 criminal cases and finished 439 in June. Eleven of the cases had all or part of the fine and costs suspended.

In the court's civil division there were 23 cases filed and 19 cases finished. That division netted the city $249.48 in costs.

There were also 51 small claims suits filed and 49 terminated, netting $169.85 in costs.

Red Dye Ban Upheld

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal appeals court has rebuffed manufacturers of Red Dye No. 2 who wanted to continue using the synthetic coloring, which the government suspects may be a weak cancer-causing agent.

The U.S. Court of Appeals on Tuesday upheld the Food and Drug Administration's 5-month-old ban on Red Dye No. 2, the nation's most widely used artificial coloring for foods, drugs and cosmetics until last year.

The three-judge panel upheld a federal judge who gave the FDA permission in February to ban future use of the coloring. The FDA did not order a recall of products containing the dye already on the shelves.

There was no immediate word from the manufacturers on whether they would appeal to the Supreme Court.

The FDA imposed the ban on the basis of tests that showed that rats fed large amounts of Red No. 2 developed cancerous tumors.

Jack The Ripper Said 3 Men

LONDON (AP) — Jack the Ripper was actually three men engaged in a political coverup operation, a book published today says.

Jack the Ripper is the name given to the unfound slayer of young women in London's West End in 1888.

Stephen Knight, in the latest of a string of theories put forth about the case, says the murders were committed not by one man, but by three.

He maintains the three included Queen Victoria's physician, a painter and a coachman.

According to his book "Jack the Ripper — The Final Solution," the three killed four women because they knew of the secret marriage of a Roman Catholic commoner to the Queen's grandson, which the prime minister feared would lead to scandal. The account says one other woman was killed because of a mistake in identity.

Investigate Death Of Young Mother

NORTH WEBSTER, Ind. (AP) — Authorities in three northern Indiana counties are investigating a series of deaths related to child birth in which religious grounds prevented persons from seeking professional medical care.

Michael L. Valentine, Kosciusko County deputy prosecutor, said Wednesday at least four deaths have been linked to a group known as Glory Barn Faith Assembly. Another death was connected with the group, Church of God Universal.

The Glory Barn group has about 1,000 members in northeastern Indiana who meet in a three-story barn east of North Webster.

Officials say the latest deaths occurred Friday when Alice Rodgers, 23, died at her home here and her child died unborn. Authorities quoted her husband, James, as reporting he did not call to make funeral arrangements because of his belief that prayer would bring his wife back to life.

Other deaths were in Goshen and Piercetown.

PET OF THE WEEK — This English Sheepdog is a female about two years old. She is friendly and is available at the Pickaway County Animal Shelter or by calling 474-3741 or 474-1283. The Pickaway County Humane Society reminds you to check the animal shelter when you discover your pet is lost. The next meeting of the society is 8 p.m. July 14 in the Pickaway County Probate Court.

South Bloomfield Eyes Income Tax

South Bloomfield council plans to meet with an independent tax consultant at the July 19 regular meeting, probably to discuss details of implementation of a village income tax.

Residents, in a survey and at public meetings conducted recently, were apparently opposed to a tax levy on personal property. The other alternative was a tax on income, according to Clerk Fern Bozman.

South Bloomfield, faced with a sagging treasury, decided several months ago to explore the possibility of instituting a tax to boost income.

Councilmen, meeting Tuesday night, learned that the South Central Ohio Power Co. planned to raise rates on street lights in the town. Regular lights will now cost $4.25 a month as compared with the old rate of $3, and mercury vapor lights on Route 23 will cost $7.50 a month as compared with the old rate of $5.41.

It was also announced that Columbia Gas of Ohio would be increasing natural gas rates in the Village.

Volunteers from the Pickaway County Community Action organization will be permitted to paint portions of the council house. Council will furnish the paint for the project, which is expected to begin soon.

In other business, council accepted the resignation of Steve Davis as an auxiliary policeman, discussed finding a replacement for him, issued a burning permit, planned to spend special notice to property owners to clean-up their yards after hearing a report of rats in the village, and continued work to bring city ordinances in compliance with the Ohio Revised Code.

Council also asked street commissioner Everett Costlow to cut-down several trees that are blocking stop signs in the village.

Mrs. Clark Gets Senate Greeting

Mrs. McClelland Clark, 410 Faye Ave., was recently congratulated by State Senator Oakley Collins for celebrating her 74th birthday.

Mrs. Clark received a document stating the Senate's congratulations signed by Collins and Richard Celeste, lieutenant governor.

Drainage of marshy areas and letting the sun hit the ground through clearings in the heavy forests did much to alleviate the sickness on Ohio's early frontier.

Audit Criticizes Real Estate Panel

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A state audit criticizing operations of the Indiana Real Estate Commission was certified to the Marion County grand jury Wednesday.

The State Board of Accounts said the commission issued licenses to four employes without proper exams, destroyed records without authorization, changed exam grades for relatives of commission members and denied licenses to some qualified applicants.

Examiners also said more than $74,000 in unrecorded cash, checks and money orders was discovered on desk tops and in unlocked drawers in file cabinets of the commission office.

State police began an investigation in March following allegations of wrongdoing.

Among the four commission employes issued allegedly improper licenses was Carl J. Nicholson of Greenfield, who resigned as commission executive director in April at the request of Gov. Otis R. Bowen.

Capital Punishment Ruling Scheduled

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Indiana Supreme Court will have the final word on whether the state's capital punishment law is constitutional, according to a spokesman for the attorney general.

Sheldon Breskow said Wednesday while the attorney general will fight any attempt to have the state act declared unconstitutional, he will not appeal such a ruling to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Breskow is chief staff counsel for Atty. Gen. Theodore L. Sendak.

Hospital Board To Seek Issue For Improvement

The Board of Berger Hospital Commissioners met at noon Wednesday and signed a resolution recommending to the county commissioners and the city council that the hospital be improved and enlarged.

It was also the recommendation to these two groups that an issue for such improvement be placed on the November ballot on a county-wide basis.

Rhodes Nixes More Bills

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Vetoes by GOP Gov. James A. Rhodes of bills sent him by the Democratic legislature reached 21 Thursday as he rejected a measure permitting legal service programs on campuses of state universities.

Rhodes has applied 94 line item vetoes in seven other measures since the 111th General Assembly convened Jan. 6, 1975.

He said his prime objection to the legal services legislation was that it would allow a publicly sanctioned program to represent students in actions against government agencies.

Such a situation, Rhodes added in his veto message, would establish "a precedent contrary to sound and responsible public policy."

While the bill by Rep. Michael P. Stinziano, D-30 Columbus, prohibits legal service agencies from taking actions against a university, its faculty and board of trustees, and against the Ohio Board of Regents, the governor said it would not prevent them from moving against other government agencies, private citizens, or "any entity that may be sued."

Thursday's veto was Rhodes' 21st of a complete bill sent him by the current legislature. He has made 94 line item vetoes in seven other measures.

No Weatherman

CHICAGO (AP) — If man ever builds colonies on the moon, weathermen won't be needed.

The moon has no weather as we know it. According to "World Book Encyclopedia," the moon has no clouds, no rain and no wind. Astronauts on the moon must use radios to communicate because there is no air to carry sound.

According to Japanese legend, earthquakes are caused by a giant catfish sleeping beneath the islands. The fish holds its tail in its mouth and whenever it bites down in its sleep it stirs in pain — and Japan quakes.

Ashville Singers To Perform

The Ashville Community Singers have been honored with a request to present their Bicentennial Tribute, "Our American Heritage", at the Sugarloaf Mountain Amphitheater, home of the outdoor drama, "Tumtumseh". The program will be given on July 25, at 8:30 p.m. in the theater located just north of Chillicothe.

This impressive and stirring patriotic musical was first presented at the Teays Valley High School Auditorium last March, and was acclaimed by enthusiastic audiences at each performance. Many people expressed a desire to see the production again.

The highlight of the Bicentennial Salute is the 100-voice choir singing the inspiring "I Love America", a musical cantata by John Peterson and Don Wyrzten. Members of the choir, dressed appropriately in old-fashioned outfits of red, white, and blue, give a thrilling rendition and sensitive interpretation of this outstanding work.

Narration is provided by Jim Leckrone, well known to Circleville audiences for his memorable performances with the Roundtown Players. The choir is under the direction of Coyt Carroll Jr. of the Circleville Bible College.

In addition, other features of the two-hour program will include songs by the "MettaLarks", a popular local quartet from the Ashville area, who have performed all over the state of Ohio, and appeared on radio and television.

The MettaLarks will present an original musical skit, "Down By The Station", complete with their own personal locomotive, depicting the importance of the railroad in our American Heritage. Several other variety acts will also be included in the evening of merriment.

Tickets for the July 25 performance will be on sale at the following locations: the information center in Chillicothe; Hallmark Store (formerly Hamilton's) in Circleville; and Boyd's Leather Shop in Ashville.

Man Hurt When Truck Hits Tree

A Route 4, Circleville man, whose out-of-control truck crashed into a tree, is being treated at a Columbus hospital for multiple injuries.

Richard L. Fugitt, 37, Route 4, suffered a broken left leg, a broken right leg and ankle, broken facial bones, a skull fracture, severe facial lacerations, and contusions and abrasions when he was pinned in the wreckage of his truck.

The unconscious Fugitt was freed from the wreckage by members of the Circleville Emergency Medical team and Deputy Sheriff Larry Kellenberger by means of a porta-power unit.

He was given initial treatment at Berger Hospital and then transferred to Mt. Carmel Hospital, Columbus.

The accident occurred 5:43 p.m. Wednesday on Route 56, one mile southeast of the Tarleton Road intersection.

Deputy Kellenberger said Fugitt apparently lost control of his truck while driving through a left curve. The truck went off the right side of the road for 147 feet, crossed back to the left side, and was out of control for an additional 103 feet before hitting the tree, which is located in the front yard of a home owned by Corilla Pontius, Route 4.

The accident is still under investigation by the deputy.

Two people suffered minor injuries in a single-car accident on slippery Pontius Road 3:45 p.m. Tuesday.

Elissa E. Parrott, 28, 1300 Bristol Court, Knollwood Village, and her son, Robert 2, were treated by their family physician for leg and arm injuries they suffered in the accident.

Deputy Jim Fite said Mrs. Parrott slid off the right side of Pontius Road, two-tenths of a mile east of the Route 188 intersection, when she applied her brakes to slow down for an oncoming car.

Wet pavement was the cause of the accident, he said.

Marsquakes Reported

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Signs of ancient Marsquakes in a long, steep-sided chasm that would dwarf our Grand Canyon have been photographed by the Viking 1 spacecraft circling the red planet.

The Martian temblors apparently were the triggers for massive landslides that shattered cliff walls and sent rock and soil thundering into the deep canyon system, scientists said Tuesday.

From Viking's point of view — 1,000 miles or more above the surface — the landslide debris closely resembled quake-caused avalanches on earth. Dr. Harold Masursky was reminded of the great earthquake that caused devastation in Alaska in 1964.

"We have some gorgeous aerial photographs and ground surveys of great debris flows (in Alaska) that are similar in size and shape to the ones we are seeing in these Viking photographs," said Masursky, of the U.S. Geological Survey.

He and other Viking scientists said they were delighted at the clarity with which the spacecraft photos showed the Vallis Marineris, a 3,000-milelong chain of canyons near the Martian equator.

Specifically, the spacecraft was studying a possible landing area for the second Viking probe, due to arrive at Mars in August and send a landing vehicle to the surface Sept. 4.

Viking 1 will dispatch its lander to its separate site on July 17.

AT BOOKS IN THE CHILDREN'S LIBRARY

You summer bibliophiles who have digested a good bit of our collection already! Don't worry... we won't run out of books. In fact, this week we have still more new titles for you!

Most of us find it hard to resist an ear of sweet corn, but how many of you know the story behind those succulent kernels? "Corn Is Maize" tells how thousands of years ago Indians found and cared for a wild plant which eventually developed into what we now call corn. You'll learn how corn was probably first grown, stored and used until it was introduced to European settlers in the 1600's.

'Scared of lumpy shapes in your room at night? 'Curious about dots of light that dance, during the day? 'Let's-Try-It-Out Light and Dark' will answer many of the questions young children may have about shadows and light reflection.

If you are curious about everything in general, you may want to browse through "The Rainbow Book of Nature." Illustrated throughout, this science encyclopedia discusses color, forms of life, time, plants, animals, etc. This volume can provide weeks of pleasant reading.

Are you a music lover? "Louis Armstrong, Jazz Ambassador" will hold the attention of the intermediate reader as it describes the musician's earlier years and his subsequent climb to fame. Find out how the trumpet player got his nickname, "Satchmo!"

In the fiction department, small patrons won't want to miss "The Maggie B." Margaret's wish comes true when she finds herself and her little brother sailing on the sea in their own little ship. As you share their adventure, you can enjoy the endearing, softly colored illustrations.

In "Don't Open This Box" Harvey finds himself in a dilemma when he receives a package tagged "Don't open this box." He knows he should obey instructions, but he is also very curious. You will be, too, before you finish this book!

Beginning readers should also enjoy "Barney Beagle Plays Baseball," a humorous story about an endearing dog who tries a bit too hard to be helpful.

Intermediate readers will chuckle as they travel with London's master mouse detective who sails to Mexico to solve the mystery of the stolen art treasure, the "Mousa Lisa." Meet the detective, his friend, Dr. Dawson, and other unusual mice in "Basil in Mexico," a take-off on Sherlock Holmes that is crammed with puns.

Older readers will sympathize with an unwanted kitten who suffers terrible hardships and near catastrophes in "Abandoned," a short novel.

See you soon!

Trustworthiness Test Backfires

A "test" of trustworthiness backfired for Merle Poling, 9011 Stoutsville Pike, Wednesday morning.

Circleville Police said Poling and two unknown men decided to test their trustworthiness at Berger Hospital's parking lot 11:30 a.m. Wednesday.

The men exchanged wallets and walked around the building.

However, when Poling returned to the meeting place, both men and his wallet containing $160 cash were gone.

Thomas Boysel, 152 E. Water St., told Circleville Police that several youths with a rifle shot a BB hole in the center of the windshield of his car.

The incident occurred 3:24 a.m. Thursday.

Marshall In Hospital

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall is expected to spend two to three weeks in Bethesda Naval Hospital recuperating from a heart attack that a court spokesman says was mild.

Marshall, 68, was "resting comfortably" Wednesday, a hospital official said. He was admitted Sunday.

On Tuesday, the hospital said in a brief announcement, "His course of illness has been and is currently uncomplicated. ... The expected duration of the hospitalization is two to three weeks with a further convalescence at home to follow."

A Supreme Court spokesman informed reporters about Marshall's illness earlier Tuesday after they inquired about his absence from the bench.

The court finished its term Tuesday and recessed until October.

Marshall has served on the high court since 1967. He was hospitalized at Bethesda in 1970 and 1975 with respiratory infections that developed into pneumonia.

Reds Rally To Stop Expos In 9th, 4-3

MONTREAL (AP) — The Montreal Expos have cleared town after their third straight loss in a three-game home stand against the Cincinnati Reds, and the National League baseball club can only wonder about the welcome it will receive on return trip home.

The Reds rallied with three runs in the ninth to win 4-3 Wednesday night, inflicting a 23rd defeat on the Expos against 11 victories in 34 home games and, as if their pathetic record weren't enough of a deterrent to attendance, the club's next eight home playing dates coincide with the Olympic Games.

Cesar Geronimo drilled a two-run triple to right center to tie the game 3-3 and chase Montreal starter and loser Steve Rogers, 2-7, before scoring the winning run on a sacrifice fly by Mike Lum off Dale Murray.

"It felt good because I got fooled by the pitch," Geronimo said of his triple. "I was waiting for a fastball and it was a curve. I was just thinking of a base hit."

The Expos gambled on a schedule that would see them going head-to-head with the Olympics, a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity for most Montrealeers. The Expos are counting on out-of-town fans more than picking up any attendance slack that might develop among residents.

"We've had a lot of inquiries," a club spokesman said. "People are writing in to ask for schedules, saying they're going to be here during the Olympics. But I don't know how you could translate that into ticket sales."

Jarry Park attendance is down by 34,935 from the same point last year, when the team missed the million mark in home attendance for the first time, drawing 908,292. There have been 339,366 paid admissions in 32 playing dates this season.

While the team has lost nine of an original 78 dates to rain, the total still represents a modest average of 10,605 per date.

Barring additional rain-induced doubleheaders, there are 37 home dates left in the season, and maintenance of the average would generate a season attendance total of 731,751, or more than 176,000 below last year.

With that kind of turnout disaster in the offing, the Games gamble becomes all the more significant. The Olympics open July 17, with the Expos playing nine games in eight days from Sunday, July 18, to Sunday, July 25, against Houston, Atlanta and New York.

There was a light drizzle during much of the wrapup game in the Reds series, but Cincinnati visitors persisted long enough before 7,105 fans to score three runs in the ninth inning for the victory and a sweep of the three-game series.

Joe Morgan and Dan Driessen led off the ninth with singles before Geronimo tripled. Mike Lum's sacrifice fly scored Geronimo with the winning run.

Manager Danny Ozark believes his Philadelphia Phillies are not tense — they're overrelaxed.

"I don't know what you call it," said Ozark. "I'm not talking about the entire team, but some guys are just over-relaxed. We're just not making the defensive plays we did in the past."

The Phils, leading the National League East Division by eight games, suffered their fourth straight defeat Wednesday, dropping a 6-5 verdict to the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"There's no excuse," said second baseman Dave Cash, the unofficial captain of the Phils. "We've just not been playing good baseball."

In other NL games Wednesday, the Chicago Cubs blanked San Diego 10-0, the New York Mets blasted Houston 12-4, Pittsburgh toppled Atlanta 9-7, Cincinnati edged Montreal 4-3 and San Francisco nipped St. Louis 3-2.

Philadelphia built a 5-2 lead after five innings, largely on Garry Maddox' two doubles and four runs batted in. But Ron Cey led off the Dodgers' sixth with a home run and in the seventh Los Angeles scored three runs, the winning tally coming home on Mike Schmidt's second two-base error of the game.

Pirates 9, Braves 7
Manny Sanguillen's first homer of the season helped power Pittsburgh past Atlanta, whose late-inning explosion fell short.

Frank Taveras and Rennie Stennett each batted in a pair of runs for the Pirates, while Jim Wynn had three hits for the Braves, including his 11th homer of the season.

Cubs 10, Padres 0
The Chicago Cubs' pitching staff, which entered the game with the worst earned run average in baseball, hurled its third straight shutout, ran its scoreless streak to 29 innings and haven't given up an earned run in 35 innings. While Rich Reuschel, 8-6, limited the Padres to just four hits while walking one and striking out four, Manny Trillo's threehome homer highlighted a five-run third inning explosion for Chicago.

Giants 3, Cardinals 2
Darrell Evans' leadoff homer in the top of the ninth carried San Francisco to its victory over St. Louis. The victory went to Gary Lavelle, 4-4, who relieved John Montefusco when the Giants starter developed a blister on his right middle finger.

Montefusco, who has been named to the NL All-Star team, said he ripped open the same finger June 26.

The San Francisco righthander has failed to gain a victory in his last five starts.

Mets 12, Astros 4
New York battered four Houston pitchers for 20 hits, including a double and single by John Milner, to post its 11th victory in 14 games. The Mets wrapped up the contest early with two runs in the first and four in the second. Jerry Koosman, 9-6, scattered 10 Houston hits over the first eight innings before Ken Sanders nailed down the victory by working the ninth.

Braves Capture Mid State Summer League Tourney

Logan Elm defeated Lancaster Blue 5-3 Tuesday to win the Mid State Summer Baseball League Tournament.

The Braves played in ten summer league games. He struck out nine, walked four and allowed only four hits.

The Braves exploded for four runs in the third inning. Lynn Strehle smashed a homerun with Randy Pontius on base to account for two of the runs. The three errors played a part in the next two.

Golfers Gripe Over Condition Of Birkdale

SOUTHPORT, England (AP) — In a British heatwave you can't sleep, you can't keep cool, you can't get ice — gad sir, you can't even keep greens properly.

So has run the lament of some of the world's top golfers after surveying the parched straw-colored fairways and burned greens on the Royal Birkdale course, where the 105th British Open is being played.

A trio of American stars — Jack Nicklaus, Johnny Miller and Tom Weiskopf — sparked the controversy about whether the Birkdale greens were in as good a shape as they should be for this type of tournament. Hale Irwin did not comment.

Nicklaus struggled home with a 74, Weiskopf a 73 and Miller a 72 in Wednesday's opening round. Irwin also had a 74. All still were well within range of surprise leaders Norio Suzuki of Japan, Severiano Ballesteros of Spain and Christy O'Connor Jr. of Ireland, each in at 69.

But the American group felt they deserved a better fate were it not for the greens.

"I thought I putted pretty well, but you never could tell what the ball was going to do," said Nicklaus. "Every green was a different pace, and that really was the problem. I hit some good putts and then they caught a bit of dry stuff and the ball would run past the hole or off the green."

American Bruce Wins Scioto Race

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — American Bruce went to the front from the gate and led all the way Wednesday night to win the featured eighth race at Scioto Downs harness track by 1 1/2 lengths.

Driven by Joe Adamsky, American Bruce covered the mile in 2:02 and paid his backers $4.20, $2.60, and $2.40.

Chuck Cave reached first on an error and the bases were loaded when Tony Crist and Tim Fouch beat out successive bunt singles. Cave scored on an error that came on a ground ball hit by Jeff Collins. Crist scored when the catcher dropped the ball on an attempted force at the plate.

In the fifth inning with two out John Mettler scored on a double by Jerry Scanlan.

Hits by the Braves included Scanlan's Double, Strehle's home run, two singles by Pontius, a single and a double by Cave and the two bunt singles by Crist and Fouch.

The losing pitcher was Rose. He fanned eight, walked six and was touched for eight hits.

Kelly Boyer, Greg Bigam and Dave Truex slammed three hits apiece for the winners and Ty Ankrom rapped a couple of key hits to send runners scampering home.

Doug Good and Tony Lightle were the big hitters for Webb's Bookkeeping.

Circleville Oil finished the first round with a mark of 12-1 while Webb's Bookkeeping compiled an 11-2 record.

Second round play in the league will get underway Wednesday night at Ted Lewis Park.

Yankees, Tigers Post Tough AL Wins

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Think you've got troubles, pal? Spare a drop of sympathy for snakebit Andy Hassler and Bert Blyleven.

Hassler made his debut for Kansas City and was sailing along with a three-hit 1-0 shutout against the New York Yankees Wednesday night when shortstop Fred Patek and left fielder Hal McRae let a pop fly drop for a two-base error with one out in the eighth inning.

Mickey Rivers singled home the unearned run, depriving Hassler of the victory, which would have been his first since April 29, 1975. In the interim, he lost a mere 17 in a row for the California Angels, just two shy of the American League record. The Royals won the game 2-1 but the victory went to reliever Mark Littell and Hassler's unenviable streak is still intact.

On June 21, Blyleven was the Texas starter and the Rangers were shut out for nine innings. On June 26, the same thing happened. Both times, however, Blyleven emerged a 1-0 victor in 10 innings.

But on July 2, the Rangers were again blanked for nine innings and this time Blyleven was nicked for a run and dropped a 1-0 heart-breaker. Wednesday night, they finally got him a run in regulation time against Detroit, but it came in the bottom of the ninth. Too late. Two Tiger runs in the top of the eighth made him a 2-1 loser.

Elsewhere, the Chicago White Sox defeated the Boston Red Sox 6-3 in 10 innings, the California Angels blanked the Cleveland Indians 2-0, the Oakland A's downed the Baltimore Orioles 5-3 and the Minnesota Twins trimmed the Milwaukee Brewers 8-2.

Frank White opened the Royals' ninth with a single off Catfish Hunter. One out later he stole second and continued to third when the throw got away from rookie shortstop Mickey Klutts.

Making his major league debut, Amos Otis followed with a sacrifice fly. Hal McRae homered in the eighth for Kansas City's first run.

Tigers 2, Rangers 1
Pinch hitter Dan Meyer singled to open the Tigers' eighth in a scoreless game and Ron LeFlore's sacrifice bunt was booted by first baseman Mike Hargrove. Blyleven then hit Tom Verryer and Ben Oglivie to force one run across before Rusty Staub's sacrifice fly drove in what proved to be the winner.

"He can't go through his whole career with this happening to him," moaned Texas Manager Frank Lucchesi. "He just can't. We didn't even threaten for a while and this was against Dave Lemanczyk, with a five-something ERA."

White Sox 6, Red Sox 3
Jim Essian drove in the tiebreaking run with a two-out single in the 10th inning and Bucky Dent followed with a two-run single. Chicago starter Bart Johnson earned his fourth consecutive victory by pitching the first nine innings although Boston tied the score with two out in the ninth on Dwight Evans' run-scoring single.

Angels 2, Indians 0
Sore-armed Nolan Ryan blanked Cleveland on five hits for his 26th career shutout and struck out 10 while Bobby Bonds took care of the offense with a homer and run-scoring double.

A's 5, Orioles 3
Sal Bando drove in two runs with a single and a sacrifice fly while ex-Oriole Paul Mitchell gained the victory with relief help from Rolie Fingers in the seventh. The A's broke a 1-1 tie with three runs in the fifth inning on consecutive singles by Bert Campaneris, Don Baylor, Joe Rudi, Bando and Gene Tenace.

Twins 8, Brewers 2
Mike Cabbage's first home run of the season, a grand slam, capped a five-run eighth inning that broke open a tight game. Bill Singer was the winner, with help from Bill Campbell in the eighth.

Blues Top Braves, 5-4

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Larry Milbourne had a homer and a single to pace the Memphis Blues to a 5-4 International league baseball victory Wednesday evening over the host Richmond Braves.

Milbourne also scored two of the Blues' runs as his team moved back into fourth place in the league standings, one-half game ahead of Richmond. Jeff Geach stroked his 10th homer of the season and Jimmy Collins had a double and a single for Richmond.

In Syracuse, the host Chiefs split a pair with Toledo, taking the opener 14-9 but dropping the nightcap 3-1. The Chiefs jumped to a 7-0 lead in the first inning. George Zeber's homer highlighted the rally. Syracuse chalked up another seven runs in the fourth inning. Rick Bladt had three hits in four at bats as did 18-year-old shortstop Domingo Ramos, who was playing his first game for the Chiefs.

In the nightcap, Richmond's Art DeFreites slammed his fifth homer of the four-game series with Syracuse. It was also his fifth homer of the season. His fourth homer came in the opener.

In other IL action Wednesday, Tidewater and Charleston split a pair, the Tides taking the opener 3-1 but dropping the nightcap 6-4; and Rhode Island downed Rochester 6-4.

TALKS TO THE BALL — Mark Fidrych, 21-year-old Detroit Tiger rookie pitcher, talks to the ball, left, and then delivers the pitch, right, in Detroit during game with New York Yankees. It was the seventh consecutive win for the rookie who has an 8-1 record. He says that he talks to the ball so it will know where to go.

Joe Morgan Joins Pals On All-Stars

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Morgan, baseball's top vote getter, joined four of his fellow teammates from the Cincinnati Reds in gaining starting berths on the National League's All-Star team, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn announced today.

Morgan, the powerful but pint-sized second baseman, will share the NL's infield starting assignment with two teammates, third baseman Pete Rose and shortstop Dave Concepcion. Catcher Johnny Bench and outfielder George Foster also will represent Cincinnati on the NL's starting team.

Steve Garvey of Los Angeles beat Cincinnati's Tony Perez in the first base balloting to prevent the world champion Reds from hogging the entire NL infield for the 47th mid-summer classic, scheduled for Tuesday night at Philadelphia.

The power-laden outfield for the National Leaguers includes Foster, Greg Luzinski of Philadelphia and Dave Kingman of the New York Mets. Fans cast a record 8,370,145 ballots this year, surpassing last year's total of 7,357,811.

Morgan, the NL Most Valuable Player in 1975, led both leagues in total votes, piling up 3,079,811. Morgan, an All-Star starter for the fifth year in the row, far outdistanced second baseman Dave Cash of Philadelphia, who had 2,194,627 votes. Morgan is batting .333 with 14 home runs and 60 runs batted in.

Rose made the All-Star squad as a third baseman for the first time in his career.

Carew Bumps Yaz From AL All-Stars

NEW YORK (AP) — In the battle between longtime All-Stars Rod Carew and Carl Yastrzemski, someone had to give. It was Yastrzemski.

Carew, a fixture at second base for the American League All-Star team the past nine years, had kept second baseman Bobby Grich of Baltimore on the also-ran list.

Now he's doing the same thing to Yastrzemski, another nine-time All-Star veteran.

Carew, the AL's top hitter the past four years, moved from second base to first base this year, and when the All-Star results were announced Wednesday by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's office, Boston's Yastrzemski was off the team.

Carew, of Minnesota, who now has made the AL's starting team each year he has been in the major leagues, collected 1,770,998 votes. Yastrzemski received 1,403,557 votes.

Catcher Thurman Munson of the New York Yankees joined Carew as the only All-Star repeater on the AL's starting team, which will face the National League All-Stars Tuesday night at Philadelphia. The AL has lost 12 of the last 13 midseason games, including last year's 6-3 decision.

Munson beat out another Boston player, Carlton Fisk, in a close battle of previous All-Star performers. Munson is the All-Star catcher for the second year in a row. Munson and shortstop Toby Harrah of the Texas Rangers led the AL starters in home runs, each with eight.

The rest of the starters are first-time electees, including outfielder Fred Lynn of Boston, the AL's Most Valuable Player and Rookie of the Year in 1975.

The remainder of the team includes third baseman George Brett of Kansas City, Grich, Harrah, and Detroit outfielders Ron LeFlore and Rusty Staub.

Grich, in his sixth major league season, beat out Yankees second baseman Willie Randolph, the first rookie ever listed on the All-Star ballot. Grich, who is batting .282 — the lowest of the AL starters — received 2,043,904 votes to 1,582,156 for Randolph.

Brett, leading the league with a .356 average, was an easy winner at third base, polling 1,873,481 votes to 1,315,602 for Don Money of Milwaukee.

The balloting at shortstop was much closer, with Harrah beating out Mark Belanger of Baltimore, 1,481,346 to 1,233,755.

Lynn, who is batting .313 with five homers and 31 runs batted in, topped Rose, now a 10-time All-Star selection after beating Philadelphia third baseman Mike Schmidt by a 2,591,650-1,939,641 count, previously represented the NL at second base, left field and right field. Rose is batting .334 with six home runs and 38 BI.

Concepcion, who made his first All-Star team last year, survived the closest battle, with a 2,130,721-1,941,092 spread over Philadelphia's Larry Bowa. Concepcion's six homers matches Rose for the lowest total among NL starters. He is batting .270 with 33 RBI.

Garvey, who was named the outstanding player in the NL's 6-3 victory last year, is batting .301 with seven homers and 44 RBI.

Luzinski, with a .310 batting average, 12 homers and 54 RBI, led the NL outfielders in the balloting with 1,946,379 votes, beating out first-time starter Foster, who leads the majors in RBI with 69. Foster, who has hit 17 homers while batting .334, amassed 1,482,045 votes. Kingman, the major league home run leader with 27, finished with 1,415,050 votes in making the team for the first time.

Bench was named the NL catcher for the eighth straight year. He is batting .234—lowest on the squad, with nine homers and 44 RBI.

Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson will name his reserves on Friday. He previously selected an eight-man pitching that included Andy Messersmith of Atlanta. But because of an injury, Messersmith was replaced by Dick Ruthven of Atlanta.

the AL balloting, receiving 2,953,664 votes.

LeFlore, who had a 30-game hitting streak earlier in the year, was second in the outfield balloting with 1,911,335 votes. He also ranks second in hitting on the team, with a .332 average.

Staub, a five-time National League All-Star selection, made the AL squad in his first season in the league. He had 1,573,703 votes and was followed in the balloting by Mickey Rivers of the Yankees, 1,432,412, and Amos Otis of Kansas City, 1,431,688.

Boston's Darrell Johnson, AL manager, will name his reserves on Friday.

Women's Open Starts

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — JoAnne Carner first will be trying to win the U.S. Women's Open Golf Championship, and, then possibly take a crack at the men's Open.

The 31st Women's Open began today over the 6,066-yard Rolling Green Golf Club in suburban Philadelphia. A field of 151 golfers, 102 pros and 49 amateurs, is seeking the women's premier golf title.

"We always point to the Open," said Mrs. Carner, a three-time winner this year and second-leading money winner ($55,891) on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour. "The Open is the most important to win. If you want money there are other tournaments. But ability-wise there is nothing like winning the Open."

Mrs. Carner, who won the Open in 1971 at Erie, Pa., was asked about possibility that she was seriously considering trying to qualify for the men's Open.

"I haven't checked to see what it entails," she said. "But it might be fun. I have to find out more information."

Brown Won't Interfere In Bengals Coaching

CINCINNATI (AP) — Paul Brown, ruling out any sideline coaching interference on game days, says firmly: "Bill Johnson will be his own man."

Brown, who stepped down as head coach of the Cincinnati Bengals after eight years, said he has no intentions of dabbling in sideline strategy on National Football League Sundays.

Johnson will run the show on game day, he said.

The 67-year-old coaching legend told a press conference Wednesday that he will reside "up in the pressbox with my family and friends like anyone else. There's not going to be any ranting or raving or giving the officials heck."

UC To Play Games In Riverfront Coliseum

CINCINNATI (AP) — University of Cincinnati basketball Coach Gale Catlett was not enthusiastic but said he planned to be diplomatic after the school signed to play its basketball games this year in the new Riverfront Coliseum.

Catlett said he feels "college basketball should be played on campus. It should be for the students, faculty, alumni, then the fans. I think a student should be able to walk from his room to the game and if the Armory Fieldhouse is too small, I think we should think about building a new facility on campus that can hold 15,000 or 16,000 people."

Angels Trip Tribe Despite Ryan Woes

ANAHEIM (AP) — Nolan Ryan has a slight pain in his arm. The Cleveland Indians, meanwhile, have a slight pain in their batting averages and strikeouts totals.

Ryan reverted to the overpowering form that carried him to these straight 300-plus strikeout seasons before the string was snapped last season by numerous injuries—including one which necessitated elbow surgery. He fanned 10 Indians and hurled the 26th shutout of his career Wednesday night, blanking the Indians 2-0.

GI Given 40 Years In Slaying

LAWTON, Okla. (AP) — Pfc. Jesse Brown, 25, of Ft. Sill Army Base, was sentenced Wednesday to 40 years in prison after pleading guilty to a first-degree manslaughter charge in connection with the beating death of another soldier.

Brown, Oklahoma City, was sentenced in connection with the beating death of Pvt. Michael John Perkins, 18, whose parents live in Dayton, Ohio.

Sentenced Tuesday to an indeterminate term of 40 years to life imprisonment was Spec. 5 Jack Bowman, 33.

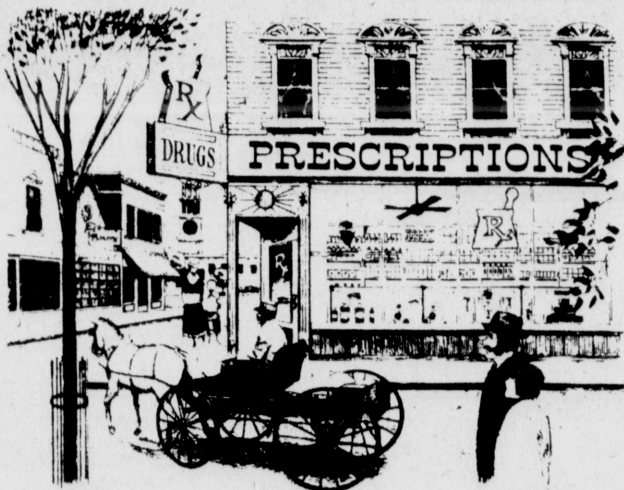

Bowman was convicted in a jury trial of second degree murder in the death. Bowman's hometown originally was given as Cleveland, Ohio, but the Ft. Sill headquarters said Wednesday that his home of record was Hampton, Va., where his mother lives now.

The prosecution said the pair met Perkins in Lawton on May 19, and drove him to Rush Lake in the nearby Wichita Mountains Wildlife Refuge where Bowman beat him to death.

Brown, the prosecution said, apparently did not take part in the actual beating, but was an accomplice.

In sentencing Bowman Tuesday, Judge Jack Brock called the crime a "deliberate, brutal and sadistic murder in which the defendant deserved the maximum punishment the court can set."

Chasing The Dollar

By JIM BISHOP

This is a good time to examine the national conscience. Everything in America is almost right. Not quite, but almost. We adore success. It is the sole goal. Success means money. Lots of money.

We aspire to the dollar bill. This is a greenish piece of paper 2 1/2 inches by 6 1/2 inches, 43-1000 of an inch thick. Anyone who has 2,796 of them has a stack one foot thick.

The piece of paper is increasingly worthless. As an example, a pound of steak cost 17 cents in 1910. The cost today averages $1.89, a devaluation of 1,100 per cent.

The cheaper the dollar gets, the harder we chase it. Fewer and fewer become richer and richer and more and more become poorer and poorer. Dollars become scarce, so Diners Club issued a credit card.

Some credit cards were in existence in 1900, but Diners made the game popular in 1950. Overnight, it became possible to spend dollars we didn't have, or hadn't earned. The card was magical.

The card became the dollar. It was the middleman between the restaurant and the customer. Eight years later, the Bank of America and Chase Manhattan got into the act.

Today we have 82 million persons living off cards. We don't need the greenbacks. Card holders live 30 days behind their expenditures. Most of us are a month in arrears of our debts. If we cannot pay, most cards will charge 18 per cent interest per year on what we owe.

The weakness of the card is the predilection of Americans to purchase more than they can afford. We buy 23 per cent more than we should. We see; we want; we buy.

The National Business Council for Consumer Affairs states that, as a people, we are in debt for $140 billion each year. Of this, $2.5 billion can be written off as bad debts.

Thousands of shops and restaurants discount what we owe for the original almighty dollar. They take our signed debts to a bank and settle for 2.5 per cent to 7 per cent less than face value. The bank takes a chance that, in time, it will collect the full amount.

All information, good and bad, goes into soulless computers whose only relation to humans is that they commit errors. The machine sometimes gives a good credit risk a bad name. Congress, acting fearlessly, passed a law against the computer in 1971 to "protect consumers against ... inaccurate or obsolete information."

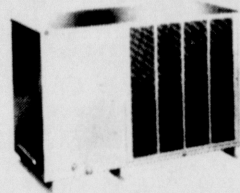

The interminable race for the dollar continues. There is an organization called the Internal Revenue Service which also hunts dollar bills. In 1913, Congress passed a law enabling the IRS to charge all wage earners a certain amount of their dollars to keep the government chunking and churning.

This is reasonable because, as Thomas Paine pointed out, a man must pay a certain amount of his wealth so that the government may protect this right to the remainder of it.

The IRS believes that Americans are inherently dishonest. Each year, it audits 2.5 million income tax returns, hoping to frighten the remainder. For this shameful task, the IRS requires 45,000 highly paid employees. No one has ever audited the IRS.

These are the faceless monastery monks of our republic, the Inquisitors in double-knit suits. They squeeze the money from the taxpayers to defray the cost of the government.

Men's neckties contain a piece of thickening cloth inside that has a bias cut to the right. This makes it easier for right-handed men to tie their ties, but makes it harder for left-handers to form a good knot.

U.S. District Court Judge William Orrick Jr. ordered the examination period extended on Wednesday and indicated he would delay sentencing until the study was completed.

The judge during Miss Hearst's trial had ordered a 90-day study period which would have expired Sunday. Orrick took over the case after the death of the trial judge, Oliver Carter.

GE Workers Nix Pact

CINCINNATI (AP) — Negotiations were expected to resume today with both unions representing about 4,000 jet engine-making workers after they overwhelmingly rejected a General Electric Co. proposal already accepted by a half dozen other GE unions.

Arnold tucker, representing the International Association of Machinists (IAM) with about 1,000 members, said talks were set to resume at 10:30 a.m. today.

Local 647 United Auto Workers (UAW) had not set negotiating time by Wednesday night.

The IAM rejected the $1.10 increase over three years by 91 per cent. The UAW turned it down by a vote of 1,718-223. Negotiators for both unions recommended rejection.

The average base pay under the old contract which ended June 28 for UAW members was $5.04. For IAM members it was $5.92. Both unions struck when contracts ran out.

The impact of the strike at the GE-Evenedale, Ohio, plant was difficult to determine since the plant normally closes down for two weeks in July, officials said. Some 6,000 nonunion workers remain on the job in clerical and supervisory positions.

Union Rejection Of Pact Disclosed

CLEVELAND (AP) — A rubber company official says the final industry offer rejected by the striking United Rubber Workers would have provided a package increase totaling more than 30 per cent over three years.

That compares to a 42 per cent increase in wage and fringes demanded by the URW at the time that 60,000 URW members struck tire plants of the Big Four rubber producers 11 weeks ago.

Those demands were reported to have been scaled down somewhat in intensive bargaining sessions over the July Fourth holiday weekend.

URW International President Peter Bommarito said Wednesday amid the continuing collapse of negotiations with industry representatives that major issues remaining were first-year pay increases, cost-of-living adjustments and pensions.

He said URW and Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. negotiators were in agreement on second and third-year pay increases totaling 55 cents an hour.

He said the union was willing to yield

Showers Widely Scattered

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Showers were widely scattered early today from the Northern Plains through the Rockies and in the Southwest. Rain, mostly light, fell over the Pacific Northwest.

Showers and occasional thunderstorms extended from the middle Mississippi Valley through northern portions of the Ohio Valley, the Great Lakes and New England as well as along the north half of the Atlantic Coast.

Other showers and thunderstorms were scattered over the Southeast and South Texas.

Much of the nation was clear to partly cloudy with seasonably warm temperatures.

Temperatures at 3 a.m. EDT ranged from 51 in Sault Ste Marie, Mich., to 102 degrees in Needles, Calif.

The national weather forecast for today: showers and thunderstorms over New England into the upper Ohio Valley and the northern portion of the Appalachian Mountains. Thunderstorms were also forecast for South Central Texas and along the Gulf Coast into the Florida Panhandle. There was a chance of showers from the Pacific Northwest into the Northern Rockies with a few thundershowers in Montana.

Above normal temperatures were expected from the southern Great Basin into the Central Rockies and the northern half of the plains. Elsewhere temperatures were expected to be near normal.

Nixon Schedules Political Speech

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Richard M. Nixon is scheduled to return to the town where he was born, Yorba Linda, Calif., next week for his first political appearance since he resigned the presidency.

The Secret Service confirmed Wednesday that Nixon will speak at a fund-raising event for Rep. Charles Wiggins, R-Calif.

Wiggins was a member of the House committee that voted three articles of impeachment before Nixon resigned his office in August 1974. Wiggins had led the anti-impeachment forces, but in the end he concluded that "the magnificent career of public service of Richard Nixon must be terminated involuntarily."

on its demand for a $1.10 first-year pay hike if industry representatives would agree to the union's cost-of-living adjustments demands.

The final offer in the Firestone talks—which the union has focused on to set the industry pattern—included a 75-cent hourly pay hike the first year.

A union official said the industry offer would give no cost-of-living protection until October 1977 and then would provide one cent an hour for every .4 per cent quarterly rise in the Consumer Price Index (CPI).

The URW official said the union was asking cost-of-living protection starting this year under a formula of one cent an hour increase for every .3 per cent quarterly rise in the CPI.

He said if the nation's inflation rate continued at 6 per cent a year, the Firestone cost-of-living adjustments offer would yield about 25 cents an hour starting late next year, compared to 35 cents an hour under the formula demanded by the union starting this year.

Meanwhile, some securities analysts here were predicting that the strike would end within two weeks.

Pam Johnson Costumes 'Tecumseh' Players

Imagine clothing a family of 100 - keeping 2,000 items mended and clean. Now imagine making each one by hand. Sounds like grounds for divorce? Nope, it's just daily routine for Pamela Schuelke Johnson, Costume Designer for "Tecumseh!", the outdoor historical drama in Chillicothe.

A slim blonde of 25 years, Pam has designed costumes since her late teens. "I more or less fell into costume designing," she remembers. While majoring in history at Mary Washington College, she took an elective drama course. When the professor asked if she could sew or draw a pattern, she said "Yes." With Pam's love for sewing (she began at age six), and her background in history, she was a natural. She was soon designing costumes for most of the college's plays.

At the same time, hundreds of miles away, plans were underway for the first season of Southern Ohio's epic drama, "Tecumseh!", and Dr. David Weiss, director of the '73 production, was looking for a costume designer. Running across some of Pam's work, Dr. Weiss asked her to submit some sketches for the drama. He liked what he saw and recommended her to the "Tecumseh!" producer.

Starting from scratch, Pam combed the rare book section of the University of Virginia library, and New York's Museum of the American Indian, while collecting her own massive files at home. The result was 150 costumes; beautiful and unquestionably authentic. That was three years ago. Today her costumes include 300 complete outfits, comprised of over 2,000 separate articles.

But designing costumes is only the beginning of the work for Pam and her five-member staff. When "Tecumseh!" begins its nationwide auditions each September, costume measurement sheets go along. Each actor is measured for 51 separate measurements. "If it doesn't fit... Make it fit!" is the costumer's motto in early June, when the 300 costumes finally meet the 100 actors.

Another problem that would make any mother shudder concerns the drama's battle scenes. Both the American and British soldiers march into battle in beautiful white trousers. But when the battle is over all 50 uniforms return to Pam and her staff. Add a little rain just before performance, and you've got a muddy mess that defies imagination. "May I have your attention," a voice blares over the backstage speakers, "All soldiers turn in your trousers to the costume shop immediately." And it's the beginning of another long night at the laundry.

During the drama's off-months, Pam combines her duties as costumer at Madison College, Virginia with those of a young housewife. After four summers at "Tecumseh!", the off-months are easy.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR FRIDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Day particularly favors occupational interest. Praise should come your way for a difficult job well handled.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Certain associates are likely to prove exasperating. In fact, one you had counted on my try to back out on a promise. Don't YOU provide the excuse.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): A successful start to a new enterprise indicated. For best results, launch at midday. The p.m. hours promise dively social activities.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Even though you reject it at the time, a suggestion put to you some weeks ago will now prove feasible. Follow up — from a slightly different angle.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Don't shrug off another's problem. It may be more serious than you think. Rather, give him (her) your undivided attention and, if you can, your help.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): A complete break from normal activities could prove stimulating. Why not try out one of those creative ideas you've had in mind?

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Mixed influences. Expect the unexpected. Others involved in your activities may have misunderstood certain arrangements.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 23): A favorable day for handling negotiations, dealing with superiors. On the personal side, look for a happy reciprocation of good will you've shown in the past.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Get an early start now. The forenoon hours will be best for realizing aims through acquaintances and group contacts.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Give top priority to career matters. No matter how desirable, by-pass other interests temporarily. It will pay later.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Even though your day may be crowded and you are eager for accomplishment, don't overlook "little" details. Seemingly minor factors could be extremely important.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): A day of great inspiration! Your innate perspicacity and knack for pleasing, applied in the right areas, could bring many unexpected benefits.

YOU BORN TODAY are an extremely practical individual, meticulous in all your undertakings, but sometimes too insistent that others be as finically scrupulous as yourself. When they aren't, you are inclined to sulk, worse yet to engage in bitter argument. It's important that you be more tolerant of your fellowman, realizing that each has his individuality and cannot, at will, become a carbon copy of yourself. Generally speaking, however, you are loyal and affectionate; have an intense love of home and family and a quiet but delightful sense of humor. You have a keen sense of values and are willing to work unstintingly for things you consider worthwhile. Fields in which you could excel: writing (especially on scientific or historical subjects), teaching, music and painting. You have an inventive mind, too, and often come up with truly remarkable ideas which benefit

LOS ANGELES (AP) —

Earl Hamner says he doesn't understand why "Rich Man, Poor Man" is getting all the credit for introducing the novelistic technique to television.

"We've been doing that on 'The Waltons' since we've been on the air," said Hamner, whose soft Piedmont accent is familiar as the narrator.

"Although each episode is self-contained, it's been like a chapter in a novel."

At the beginning of each season, Hamner plots the story like a novel for the guidance of writers. Major story developments, which will carry from episode to episode, are outlined. He broadly sketches out what directions each character will take.

For the first time since it premiered four years ago, "The Waltons" is meeting stiff opposition in the ratings from ABC's "Welcome Back, Kotter" and "Barney Miller." But Hamner contends the show hasn't been hurt and is still CBS' highest-rated hour-long show and second over-all only to "The $6 Million Man."

Hamner works in a spacious office where one wall of sketches, paintings and photographs from the show and his home in Virginia reflects the blend of fiction and fact.

"In the beginning I didn't think much about growth," he said. "It's just that the children have grown so rapidly. They're not the Walton kids any more but the Walton young people."

It was the necessity of keeping up with the growing children, as well as the fact that Hamner has his own family's history to draw on, that turned the series toward a novelistic approach.

Hamner, of course, takes dramatic license and warps time. For instance, John-Boy will publish his first novel at the age of 20, while Hamner didn't achieve that until he was 29. Jim-Bob adopts a peacock at the age of 13. Hamner's own brother Jim didn't come by the peacock until he was in his 30s.

In the fall season, the year will be 1937 and the family will continue to struggle against the effects of the Depression.

"What they don't know is that World War II is ahead of them," Hamner said. "In my family's case, five children went into the service. In some ways a greater struggle lies ahead."

"I'd like the show to last long enough to get into the war years. I'd like to show what happens under the stress of war."

When the series does end, Hamner plans to return to writing books, such as the two that inspired the series, "Spencer's Mountain" and "The Homecoming."

Angry President Nixes Bias Order

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal ban on school-sponsored mother-daughter and father-son events irritated President Ford so much that he ordered it rescinded. But a women's group says such functions perpetuate sexual stereotypes and should be eliminated.

Ford ordered a study to determine if single-sex social events violate federal sex discrimination laws, as alleged by the civil rights office of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

White House spokesman Ron Nessen said Wednesday that Ford was irritated when he read of the ruling banning single-sex school events.

The HEW ruling was in response to an inquiry from the Scottsdale, Ariz., public schools, which sponsor father-son banquets and mother-daughter teas. Scottsdale officials wanted to know whether the events violated the laws prohibiting sex discrimination in public schools.

Officially, the ruling issued last week was suspended pending research by lawyers to determine whether Title IX of the Civil Rights Act is violated by such events.

Nessen said that if it is found that the law is being violated, Ford would immediately send legislation to Congress to change the law.

The National Organization for Women took opposition to Ford's stand.

"We are watching Title IX being nickled and dimed to death," charged Lynda Weston, a NOW staff member.

Dividing the sexes for school-sponsored fashion shows, softball games, banquets and breakfasts is a tradition in many communities.

"What happens is you get the girls together with the moms and you have teas and awards for sewing and fashion shows. You get the boys and dads together and you have community leaders come in and give rousing speeches," the NOW official said.

Other opponents argue such affairs are unfair to children with only one parent.

Ford phoned HEW Secretary David Mathews and "expressed displeasure at the ruling," said Nessen. "The President advised the secretary that he cannot believe that it was the intent of Congress to prohibit mother-daughter or father-son events at schools."

Nancy Low, spokeswoman for the civil rights office, said that after a five-month study the office determined that such events were prohibited by the antidiscrimination law.

"Arbitrary separation of the sexes is not permitted," she said.

Mathews, disclosing that HEW planned no enforcement action regarding the events during its review, said the department "will advise any school wishing to have such events to proceed."

Police Decoys Testify On Howe Arrest

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Two $432-an-hour police decoy prostitutes have told a City Court judge that Rep. Allan T. Howe, D-Utah, offered them $20 for specific sex acts before he was arrested last month on a misdemeanor sex charge.

Dressed in casual pants, sandals and a see-through blouse, Margaret Hamblin covered her face Wednesday in apparent embarrassment when asked what the freshman congressman wanted her to do.

Chief City Prosecutor Phillip Palmer said she didn't have to use the exact language and asked whether Howe proposed sexual acts.

"Yes, he did," she told a hearing on motions to dismiss the charge against Howe of soliciting sex acts for hire. Her written police report had quoted Howe as using explicit language for the acts.

Trial on the charge was postponed one week to July 19 because of the complexity of motions filed by the defense.

Kathleen Taylor, questioned by defense attorney Dean Mitchell, said she wore "Levis and a top" the night of the arrest. She was dressed similarly in court.

She said Miss Hamblin did all the talking when Howe approached in his car.

Asked who first mentioned a price for a sex act, Mrs. Taylor said, "Mr. Howe," glancing at the congressman. He sat silently in the courtroom with his wife, Marlene.

The decoys acknowledged that Miss Hamblin was first to bring up money. They said she asked what Howe would pay, quoting him as saying, "I usually go about $20."

She said they asked if he wanted to pay that much and that he agreed.

The decoys, appearing in public for the first time since Howe was arrested June 12, were called during arguments on a defense motion to dismiss on grounds the congressman was a victim of entrapment.

Howe, who is running for reelection in Utah's 2nd District, acknowledges talking with the decoys but denies the charge. He said he was lured to the area with an invitation to a political social.

The decoys' testimony repeated details of a transcribed dialogue released by police shortly after Howe's arrest, although both women said the conversation had not been recorded or monitored.

Entrapment is one of five grounds on which Mitchell is asking dismissal of the case. Judge Raymond Uno took three of the motions under advisement and asked for a hearing Monday on two others, which are based on pretrial publicity and allegations of prosecutorial misconduct.
